Food, Health
Are ExceptedFlouters Of Guidelines
To Be 'Clobbered'

Washington (AP) — President Nixon, vowing a continued fight against inflation, scrapped most firm wage-price controls Thursday except those on the food and health industries.

In a surprise move, Nixon told Congress he will rely on a largely voluntary effort to restrain increases in prices and wages.

However, the relaxation in mandatory controls was coupled with a threat to "clobber" those flouting the new program. And, the White House said, pay increases are expected to be kept within the current 5 1/2% yearly maximum until new standards are established.

In his announcement, Nixon said firm regulations will be continued "with special vigor for firms involved in food processing and food retailing."

Health Services Controlled

In addition, mandatory aspects of the now-abandoned Phase 2 control program will continue to apply to health services—doctor, dentist and hospital bills.

In announcing that he was abolishing the Phase 2 Price Commission and Pay Board, Nixon asked Congress to extend for one year beyond a scheduled April 30 expiration the Economic Stabilization Act that permits firm wage-price ceilings.

Under the requested standby authority, Treasury Secretary George Shultz said, any companies or unions that flout new voluntary guidelines "are going to be clobbered."

In a special message to Congress, Nixon established a broad goal of reducing the nation's inflation rate to 2 1/2% or less by the end of this year.

Nixon's dismantling of most of the control machinery will lead, Shultz said, to cutbacks in the number of federal workers assigned to policing wage-price restraints.

Most Teeth Pulled

While taking most of the teeth out of the program, Nixon promised Congress that "special efforts will be made to combat inflation in areas where rising prices have been particularly troublesome, especially in fighting rising food prices."

Nixon was somewhat vague about the wage-price guidelines he will expect management and labor to observe during the weeks and months ahead.

"As a general guide for prices, increases of prices above presently authorized levels should not exceed increases in costs."

The document added that even if costs go up, a firm would not be expected to increase its profit margin over a recent historical base.

"The existing general standards of the Pay Board can be taken for the present as a guide to appropriate maximum wage increases unless and until they are modified," the White House said.

Under the old rules, pay hikes generally were to be limited to a maximum of 5 1/2% a year.

Advisory Committee Set Up

Nixon announced he was establishing a management-labor advisory committee, with AFL-CIO President George Meany as a member, to advise the Cost of Living Council on possible modifications in pay standards.

Meany and other representatives of organized labor had long complained that the Phase 2 program permitted disproportionate price increases at the expense of wage earners.

For the next 90 days, the Price Commission and Pay Board will continue to process backlog cases, Shultz said.

All new price or wage increases would be reviewed by the Cost of Living Council. And Nixon announced that John T. Dunlop, Harvard University economist, will become COLC director to succeed Donald Rumsfeld.

Budget Approval Expected

Nixon emphasized that he expects Congress to approve his federal-budget proposals, aimed at holding down federal spending, enjoining the legislators to exhibit a "sense of fiscal discipline."

Under the new rules some 3,500 firms with sales of more than $50 million a year would have to keep records of profit-margin changes as well as price adjustments — and produce the records on request.

About 800 businesses with yearly sales of $250 million or more would be required to file reports every three months "concerning any weighted average price change and their profit margin."

Unions representing 5,000 or more workers must report wage-rate changes to the Cost of Living Council. Those with 1,000 or more members would have to keep records of such changes, available upon request.

Reformatory Once Housed Military Academy

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Men's Reformatory, replacement of which is being proposed in the Legislature, wasn't always the pale green flat-topped stucco structure that it is today.

Once a splendid edifice, the original red-brick building sported castle-like battlements along the perimeter of its roof and a turreted tower over the arched front entrance.

Built in 1909 this fortress-like structure was a fitting home for the newly established

Nebraska Military Academy.

Not the First

But even that massive piece of architecture was not the original occupant of the present reformatory site.

Few Lincolmites will recall Western Normal College which was built on that land in 1892.

Originally located in Shenandoah, Ia., Western Normal College had to find a new home when a fire destroyed the entire structure and contents of the school in 1891.

College President William M. Croan received numerous requests from cities across the country asking that the college relocate in their area. Of all the offers made, Lincoln's was the most acceptable to him.

Received $127,000

Croan received $127,000 in buildings and equipment, all of which was to become his at the end of five years, free of debt. The city also promised to build electric cars from Lincoln to the school and to erect cottages heated by steam or hot air and lighted by electricity for accommodations. In return Croan agreed to maintain the school for at least 10 years.

Among the courses offered by the college were a four-year classical course, a three-year scientific course and a two-year didactic course. Technical departments included schools of music, elocution, military and physical culture, telegraphy and modeling.

One of the advantages of the school, boasts an 1894 information brochure, was that it continued in session 48 weeks a year, saving 15 months of school time in a five-year course. The pamphlet further explains that at a modest estimate one could save $1,000 in 15 months, or more than enough to pay the entire expenses for four years at the college.

Structure Praised

In addition to the expansive curriculum, the physical structure of the school received a great deal of praise.

A June 26, 1892 editorial of the State Journal reported that "no educational building in Nebraska approaches this one in size and in generosity of its arrangement." The article went on to say that "it will be a sound building from basement to tower-point."

Several years later Col. B. D. Hayward renovated the remains of the old college building and established the Nebraska Military Academy.

Misfortune Strikes

Misfortune through fire once again struck only one month after the Academy's opening in 1908, entirely destroying the newly-rebuilt school.

Rather than abandon the school altogether, Hayward decided to build a new fire-proof structure on the same site. During the period of construction, classes were held at the YMCA while the boys lived four in a room at the Windsor Hotel, getting up before the must be stated in a separate verdict," Patton said.

During his 30-minute instructions, the judge told the jurors: "You may consider motive or a lack of it as a circumstance in this case. Lack of it may indicate ignorance."

In his final rebuttal arguments Thursday, special prosecutor Ron Fahey said the motive is locked in Corona's mind and "a team of 10 psychiatrists probably would never be able to sort it out."

The prosecution's case against Corona was entirely circumstantial, key items in the state's case were meat workers to death and burying their bodies along the Feather River.

The jury, which will be locked up until it reaches a verdict, received the case exactly four months after the trial began.

Instructions Requested

After eating lunch in the jury room, the jurors returned to the courtroom briefly, requesting further instructions from the judge whether they must decide each of the murder counts separately.

After a brief conference in chambers with attorneys, the judge told the panel it must decide each count separately. "Your finding to each count

Juan Corona Case Goes To Jury

Fairfield, Calif. (UPI) — The mass murder trial of Juan V. Corona went to the jury Thursday, nearly 20 months after the bodies of 25 farm workers were dug up from orchards along the Feather River.

The panel of ten men and two women received the case after Superior Court Judge Richard Patton instructed the jurors to return one of three verdicts — guilty of first degree murder, guilty of second degree murder, or innocent.

Roads Dept., Game Unit Split Over Recreation Road Funds

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Department of Roads Thursday parted company with the Game and Parks Commission over the criteria which should be used in allocating state recreation road funds.

Game Commission Director Willard Barbee told a legislative study committee he supports present law, which bars the use of such funds for roads on the state highway system.

Current law also gives the Game Commission the authority to determine eligibility for recreation road funding.

Roads Director-State Engineer Thomas Doyle supported a bill which would amend the law to allow the use of recreation road funds on state highways, and give the director-engineer joint authority with the Game Commission secretary to determine how the funds are expended.

The bill, LB41, sponsored by Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance, was held by the Legislature's Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee for further study.

Stull said his bill returns the law to its form prior to amendment by the 1972 Legislature.

Enactment of the 1972 law rendered ineligible a recreation road project programmed south of Rushville to Smith Lake adjoining Stull's district. That stretch is on the state highway system.

Other programmed recreation roads were also made ineligible under the 1972 law, Doyle noted.

Gov. J. James Exon vetoed the 1972 bill, but it was enacted by the Legislature despite the governor's objections.

Barbee said it is "regrettable" that the Smith Lake road was not constructed, but he said he wants the current law retained in an effort to channel recreation road funds into both access and interior roads at recreational areas.

If the law is not changed, he told the committee, he can double the available money with 50% federal matching funds.

The Game Commission has projected the need for about $17.5 million in recreation road construction funds. Barbee said. Under the 1972 law, it has certified to the Department of Roads more than $1 million in eligible projects.

Stull said there is a projected balance of $3,487,728 in the recreation road fund for this fiscal year. The fund is supplied by 50 cents from each motor vehicle registration fee and a current general fund appropriation of $500,000.

Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton told the committee he will not support using any recreation road funds on state highways, whether they are located in his legislative district or not.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha, committee chairman, said he objects to previous certification of recreation road funds for construction to the Cooper nuclear power plant near Brownville and to the Northeast Nebraska Experiment Station in Dixon County.

Certification has been deferred in both cases.

Under present state policy, Burbach noted, recreation roads constructed by the state are turned over to the counties for maintenance.

Support for the bill was voiced in behalf of the State Highway Commission and by citizens from Rushville and Dixon County.

Nixon Finance Committee Faces Criminal Charges

Washington (UPI) — The Justice Department brought criminal charges Thursday against President Nixon's campaign finance committee, including allegations that its treasurer illegally turned over $29,300 to a former White House aide now standing trial in the Watergate bugging case.

Although three of the eight misdemeanors charged involved the alleged illegal transfer of cash by Hugh P. Sloan Jr. to G. Gordon Liddy, no individual officers of the Finance Committee for the Re-election of the President were named.

A spokesman for the parent committee for the Re-election of the President called the alleged violations "technical and unintentional."

The Justice Department also brought separate charges, in its first use of the 1971 federal election campaign law, against three unsuccessful congressional candidates for failing to make required reports.

Liddy, a former aide in both the White House and on the campaign committee staff, is one of seven men accused of wiretapping the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate last summer. Their trial began Monday.

In the new charges, Sloan, the Finance Committee treasurer, was accused of turning over a series of payments totaling $29,300 to Liddy without getting receipts required by the new law.

During last fall's campaigns, there were complaints of violations by both sides, including General Accounting Office reports that were turned over to the Justice Department for possible action. On Aug. 26, the GAO referred five possible violations of the law by Nixon campaign groups to the department.

In addition to the Sloan-Liddy charges, the department also accused the committee of failing to report expenditures and failing to get a receipt and report expenditure of an additional $2,000 that went to Liddy.

Because no individual members of the committee were named, nobody would be jailed if the committee were found guilty of the charges. The maximum penalty on conviction would be a $1,000 fine for each of the eight counts.

The unsuccessful congressional candidates named were Fritz J. Thigerson, Peace and Freedom Party candidate for the House from California's 43rd District; Charles W. Johnson, Democratic candidate in Ohio's 12th District; and William C. Haden, Democratic candidate in the Pennsylvania 14th District.

New York Times
News Summary

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — President Nixon ended most mandatory wage and price controls Thursday and announced the beginning of a system of "voluntary cooperation" by labor and business to hold the line against inflation. Controls will remain in the food processing, health care and construction industries. (More on Pages 1 and 19.)

Congressmen Divided

Washington — Congressional reaction to the President's announcement divided along party lines. Democrats complained that the removal of most wage and price controls was premature. Republicans said the move was timely.

Hunt Pleads Guilty

Washington — E. Howard Hunt Jr., a former White House consultant, was forced to plead guilty to all, rather than just some, of the charges against him in the Watergate bugging trial. Afterwards he denied any wider conspiracy involving White House aides and said anything he had done was "in the best interest of my country." (More on Page 2).

Nixon Committee Accused

Washington — The Justice Department charged President Nixon's campaign finance committee with eight violations of federal law. The committee was accused of failing to record and report $31,300 it allegedly gave to a defendant in the Watergate bugging trial. (More on Page 1).

Nixon Raises School Ax

Washington — President Nixon plans to eliminate or phase out many popular education programs, according to preliminary budget documents reaching Capitol Hill. Many existing programs would be sharply reduced and no funds would be allocated for some new programs approved by Congress last year.

Army Reorganizing

Washington — The Army announced a major reorganization of domestic commands, the most sweeping since 1962. Citing a feeling that the "Army's logistical and administrative tail is too big for our combat teeth," Army Secretary Robert F. Froehke disclosed the plan involving reorganization of commands comprising more than a million men, and eliminating 15,000 civilian and military jobs. (More on Page 3).

Vietnamese Revert

Paris — The Saigon and Communist delegations reverted to stiff fundamentalist demands at the weekly session of the four-sided peace conference in Paris as the secret negotiations between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho continued for a fourth straight day. As usual there was no direct word on developments at the secret talks.

Hunt Freed After Pleading Guilty To Bugging Charges

Washington (UPI) — Former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt Jr. was jailed briefly and freed on $100,000 bond Thursday after the presiding judge in the Watergate bugging trial accepted his plea of guilty to all charges against him.

Hunt, the 54-year-old alleged chief recruiter of undercover agents to spy on Democrats last year, admitted under questioning by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica that he "knowingly and intentionally and unlawfully" committed the six counts of conspiracy, burglary and illegal eavesdropping with which he was charged.

On the second day of the trial, Sirica rejected Hunt's offer to plead guilty to three of the six counts, in the interest of "both the substance and appearance of justice."

But when Hunt's attorney came back with a guilty plea on all six counts, Sirica accepted it and ordered the ex-CIA agent jailed immediately in a basement cell at U.S. District Court.

Hunt spent only a few minutes behind bars until his lawyers could post the bond, by gaining assignment of the $250,000 in life insurance policies on his wife, who was killed in a Chicago plane crash a month ago.

Puffing on a lengthy cigar and unsmiling, Hunt told

He said his guilty pleas were prompted partly by his hopes of getting a reduced

Demos Set Full Watergate Probe

Washington (UPI) — Senate Democrats voted Thursday for a full investigation of the Watergate bugging case and related allegations of Republican efforts to sabotage the 1972 Democratic presidential campaign. Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., was designated to lead the inquiry.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said only a man of Ervin's stature could handle such an investigation. Ervin is chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee and of a judiciary subcommittee.

Asked when the hearings might begin, Mansfield said Ervin probably would "cull all the evidence and wait until an appropriate time."

sentence, his belief "I couldn't sustain the experience of a long trial" and his desire to be with his four children.

During direct questioning of Hunt, the judge abandoned his attempt to get the defendant to describe his role and others involved in the alleged conspiracy to steal documents and secretly monitor conversations among Democratic officials at the Watergate complex.

'Tell Me How'

When Sirica asked Hunt to "tell me how you got into this conspiracy," defense lawyer William O. Bittman objected that Hunt's reply could prejudice his position in a planned grand jury investigation as well as the case against the six other Watergate defendants.

After Sirica's decision to accept the full guilty plea, the jury was called back into the courtroom for the first time since Wednesday afternoon. "You are no longer to be concerned with the case of United States vs. E. Howard Hunt," the judge told them without further comment.

Hunt's lawyer protested the unusually high bond. But Sirica replied, "You can take it to the Court of Appeals if you want."

The judge said Hunt had fled government investigators in Washington shortly after the June 17 break-in at the Watergate, that he had friends in foreign countries and was not employed, although Bittman countered that Hunt still made a living as a writer.

Prosecution Correct

Under questioning by both Sirica and outside the courtroom, Hunt said the prosecution's opening statement about his role in the Watergate break-in was substantially correct.

The six counts against Hunt could bring a maximum sentence of more than 30 years in prison and $40,000 in fines. Sirica will set sentence after a presentencing investigation.

One of the lawyers for the remaining six defendants said Sirica denied their move for a mistrial.

Navy Trial Records Shows Essex Had 'Begun To Hate All Whites'

Emporia, Kan. (AP) — A year ago before the New Orleans shootout Sunday in which he and six others died, Mark "Jimmy" Essex told a Navy court-martial he had "begun to hate all white people," the court-martial record shows.

Essex, 23-year-old black from Emporia identified by police as a sniper in the New Orleans incident, was tried in January, 1971 for 28 days of unauthorized absence during the previous October.

A certified photocopy of the court-martial proceedings, given to The Associated Press Thursday by Essex' family, included Essex' statement to the court that "I went UA (unauthorized absence) because I just needed time to think."

"I had to talk to some black people, because I had begun to hate all white people. I was tired of going to white people and telling them my problems, and not getting anything done about it."

In a family news conference Thursday, Essex' mother, Mrs. Nellie Essex, was asked if the others killed and injured in New Orleans had received the kind of justice that her son was seeking for himself.

"No, I don't think there was any justice in the whole situation," she said. "But I do think Jimmy was driven to do this."

Asked if she agreed with the actions attributed to her son, she replied, "I didn't say I agreed with it. But Jimmy felt there had to be a change."

Mrs. Essex, who holds a master's degree in early childhood education and teaches in a Head Start program in Emporia, said, "Jimmy wasn't himself when he did this," but added he "never showed any signs of imbalance" when at home or in telephone conversations from New Orleans.

The young man's sister, Mrs. Penny Fox, 22, of Waterloo, Iowa, said on the same subject, "I don't think it was extreme. My brother believed in the revolution and anytime you have a revolution you have to have a change."

Mrs. Essex displayed a certificate to newsmen bearing her son's name and carrying the heading "Honorable Discharge."

A Navy spokesman in Washington said last Wednesday that Essex had been issued a general discharge for unsuitability. "A discharge of this type," said the spokesman, "involves 'character and behavior disorders.'"

A Navy spokesman, asked for clarification Thursday, said a general discharge did not necessarily mean a serviceman left the military under dishonorable circumstances and reiterated what he said were reasons for Essex' discharge.

Essex' body was returned to Emporia Thursday from New Orleans for burial Saturday.

Police Doubt They Will Ever Find More Snipers

New Orleans (UPI) — Mayor Moon Landrieu said Thursday police may never learn if there was more than one sniper in the burning and shooting spree at a downtown hotel that led to the death of seven persons.

Police and FBI agents searched for clues from friends and neighbors of Mark Essex, 23, who was shot and killed by officers Sunday night on the roof of the Howard Johnson Hotel. But there was no trace of a second gunman.

"The controversy may never be ended," Landrieu said at a news conference. "Nine years ago, President Kennedy was assassinated. There followed the most thorough investigation in the world. There are still many people who believe it was a conspiracy."

Gov. Edwin W. Edwards said he would empanel "some of the state's greatest legal scholars" to determine if Louisiana could pass a law reinstating the death penalty for persons who kill law officers. The U. S. Supreme Court last year abolished capital punishment.

Local 641 of the Patrolman's Association of New Orleans (AFL-CIO) sent a letter to President Nixon, asking for "an official federal investigation into the recent tragedy and killing of seven individuals, including three New Orleans police officers."

The Patrolman's Association told Nixon the death penalty should be re-established for those who kill police in line of duty. They further asked for federal funds for training in "sniper activity" because this type of guerrilla warfare "is new to law enforcement."

officers in the state of Louisiana."

Landrieu said Essex, who dropped a .44 Magnum rifle as he was killed by police, might have been more lucky than clever.

The short, stubby rifle has been linked to the sniper slaying of a New Orleans police cadet New Year's Eve and to deaths of at least two of the six persons killed in the 27-hour stretch of terror in and around the Howard Johnson Hotel Sunday and Monday.

"There certainly was an indication from his movements that he knew a great deal about the building," Landrieu said. "But that doesn't mean he spent a great deal of time planning things. There are some things that happened by luck, in my opinion, rather than by planning. He opens a door and it's the stairway."

"He gets to the roof and instead of it being a flat roof there are three structures, two of which are open and he can enter."

Most Of Stolen Drugs Recovered

Oklahoma City (AP) — A quantity of confiscated narcotics was stolen from the Oklahoma Bureau of Investigation in 1965 but most was recovered, although the theft was never made public, it was revealed.

At the same time, the chief chemist of the bureau said all confiscated drugs are analyzed only once — when they are first brought in — and are not reanalyzed before destruction to confirm that no substitution has been made.

4 Indochina Countries Bombed

Saigon (UPI) U. S. B52s bombed all four countries of Indochina Thursday while fighter-bombers made the most concentrated strikes in eight weeks in North Vietnam below the 20th parallel, the U. S. Command reported.

North Vietnam's army newspaper accused President Nixon of "conditioning the public to further hit-and-run strikes or a massive blitz" of the northern heartland. Radio Hanoi said the port of Haiphong was hastily improving its air defenses.

UPI correspondent Kenneth F. Engle reported that Communist rockets bombarded a South Vietnamese army camp located in a former U. S. Marine base three miles south of DaNang. There were no reports on damage or casualties from the nighttime rocket attack, he said.

In Saigon, the U. S. Command said three Americans were killed and eight wounded in action last week, while two others died of non-hostile causes. The South Vietnamese command reported 929 Communist battle deaths in the same period — the first time they had fallen below the 1,000 mark.

The U. S. Command also said there were 144 fighter-bomber strikes into North Vietnam's panhandle in the 24 hours ending Thursday morning, four more than the previous day and the highest total since Nov. 16, when 270 such strikes were reported.

Fourteen formations of B52s — at least 42 of the big bombers — hit Communist supply dumps south of Vinh, between Dong Hoi and the demilitarized zone and along routes to the Ben Karai Pass, a major access to the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos.

Seventeen flights of B52s bombed Communist troops and supplies in South Vietnam, with seven of the strikes in Communist-controlled areas of northernmost Quang Tri Province and three near the former Michelin Rubber Plantation, 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

The U. S. Command said B52s bombed Laos and Cambodia in the 24 hours ending Thursday morning. It is believed that two flights of B52s struck in each country. The Laos strikes were thought to be along the Ho Chi Minh Trail and the Cambodian missions in the densely jungled northeast.

The South Vietnamese Command in a delayed report announced the sighting of 200 bodies of slain Communists Tuesday in Cambodia's Parrot's Beak, eight miles southwest of the provincial capital of Svay Rieng, midway between Saigon and Phnom Phen.

U. S. military sources said it was not immediately known whether the 200 were killed by American or South Vietnamese air strikes. But if they were killed by American planes, they were fighter-bombers because the area is too populous for B52 strikes, the sources said.

The command said targets in the North, including petroleum storage areas near Vinh and Dong Hoi, were bombed by planes from the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise. Enterprise pilots also destroyed two highway bridges near Vinh and Air Force fighter bombers using laser guided "smart" bombs destroyed antiaircraft sites and a 122mm field gun near Dong Hoi, the command said.

Contingency Plan
Noting that Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff disclosed that the Pentagon has a contingency plan for resuming bombing of North Vietnam beyond the 20th parallel. Hanoi's Quan Doi Nhan Dan (People's Army Daily) said:

"It is clear that Nixon is conditioning the public to further hit and run strikes or a massive blitz that may be resumed at any time on all North Vietnam. This, indeed, is an utterly impudent challenge to the progressive peoples in the whole world..."

"We are dead serious in Paris peace negotiations and we are quick to make riposte to the U. S. war-maniacs," the army newspaper said.

Radio Hanoi, meanwhile, in a broadcast monitored in Saigon, said, "the Haiphong Provincial Commission and Administrative Committee has decided to step up antiaircraft defense and evacuation preparations..."

"Bunkers and trenches were consolidated and 160,000 more fox holes were dug and hundreds of bunkers were made..." the Radio Hanoi broadcast said.

Douglas Releases Newsmen

Los Angeles (UPI) — Newsmen William T. Farr said Thursday he was "delighted" with the news that Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas had ordered his release from jail but he was prepared to return to his cell if necessary.

A UPI reporter was the first person to inform Farr in his jail cell that Douglas had ordered his release pending various appeals the newsmen has filed.

Farr, a reporter for the Los Angeles Times, has been in jail since Nov. 27 for refusing to reveal the source of material for a story he wrote during the Charles Manson trial when he was a reporter for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner.

Army Announces Big Reorganization

Washington (UPI) — Hoping to still charges of inefficiency, wasted money and top heavy command structure, the Army Thursday announced its first major reorganization in 11 years.

Army Secretary Robert F. Froehke said the changes to be made before the end of 1973 would streamline the chain of command by closing unnecessary headquarters, eliminate 15,000 civilian and military jobs, and save almost $1 billion over the next five years.

Key features of the reorganization include abolishing two of the three major commands in the United States, establishing two new commands for training and combat readiness, and elimination of the 3rd U.S. Army, which Gen. George S. Patton made famous by his dash across France and Germany in World War II.

Froehke said no bases will be closed as a result of the reorganization, although some will be reduced in scope.

Limited To U.S.

Virtually all the changes will be limited to the United States, and most of them should be completed by July, he said. The Army listed 64 installations in 29 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico where a "major impact" would be felt.

One result of the reorganization, Froehke said, will be the elimination of 813 Army staff jobs at the Pentagon — including some generals — and the transfer of another 1,986 Army personnel from the Pentagon into the field.

Setting up the new structure and moving personnel will cost about $100 million, Froehke said. But he said after this one-time cost the Army expects to save approximately $190 million a year because of the changes.

Froehke and Gen. Creighton W. Abrams — at his first Pentagon news conference since he took office as Army chief of staff last fall — said the changes resulted from pressure both inside and outside the Army.

Some of these pressures Froehke listed were widespread demands for the Army "to be sure that our logistical and administrative tail is not too big for our combat teeth," rising manpower costs, smaller budgets, the need for increased reliance on reserve forces and congressional calls for a separate agency to test new equipment.

Among the major changes:

— Elimination of the 3rd Army, headquartered at Ft. McPherson, Ga., and consolidation of its units with the 1st Army, headquartered at Ft. Meade, Md. This left the United States with three armies — 1st, 5th and the 6th.

— Elimination of the Combat Development Command at Ft. Belvoir, Va., and the Continental Army Command at Ft. Monroe, Va., two of the three major commands in the United States established during the last big reorganization in 1962.

— Establishment of a new forces command at Ft. McPherson to supervise the training and readiness of all active and reserve Army units and National Guard units in the United States.

— Establishment of a Training and Doctrine Command at Ft. Monroe to direct individual training, educational and Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) programs, and the development of new concepts for modern warfare.

— Mergers and reductions in the Safeguard antiballistic missile program because of the arms limitations treaty signed in Moscow last May.

— Improvement in health care organization, personnel center facilities and other programs to make Army life more pleasant and more responsive to the needs of the individual soldier.

SEC Finds No Evidence Of Infraction By Sedco

(c) Washington Star-News
Washington — The Securities and Exchange Commission staff has found no evidence that a company run by President Nixon's nominee for deputy secretary of defense violated any SEC regulations on financial disclosure.

The staff's views were made in a letter from SEC Chairman William J. Casey to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who had sought an investigation.

The company is Sedco Inc., an oil-drilling firm which was founded in 1947 by William P. Clements Jr., whom Nixon has nominated for the No. 2 post at the Defense Department.

"Upon the basis of all the information we have obtained to date, the staff does not believe that the company failed to report any event or events required to be disclosed in reports filed with the commission," Casey's letter said.

'What A Wallop! Is That Stuff Imported Or Domestic?'

Another Hasty Move?

A move within the Legislature to withdraw Nebraska's early ratification of the equal rights for women amendment to the U.S. Constitution may prove to be as hasty as the original approving vote was claimed to be.

It appears that the sponsors of the resolution to repeal the ratifying vote. Sens. Richard Proud of Omaha, William Hasebrook of West Point and Irving Wiltse of Falls City, are responding in knee-jerk fashion to a rather shrill protest from an apparently small but organized group of women centered in northeast Nebraska.

The women who have written in protest against the equal rights amendment say they do not want equal rights with equal responsibilities. They see the amendment variously as a "subtle, sinister communist tactic" to destroy the family unit; as a vehicle which will rob women of their roles as wife, mother and homemaker and as a government edict which would nullify rape laws, make women subject to the draft and take their babies away from them and force both sexes to share the same rest room. They talk in terms of privilege and special rights.

We don't think the authors of the amendment had any such intentions and furthermore, we think they know and appreciate the difference between women and men.

In truth, it's hard to legislate equality. The amount of equality society desires — between the sexes, the races and people of differing abilities — will in the end be accomplished as it has thus far, through a long, agonizing period of conditioning.

The force of law speeds up the process, however. The equal rights amendment was not intended to establish common rest rooms or take babies away from mothers. Its purpose is to establish, for example, a woman's right to hold a job of which she is capable and her right to equal pay for equal work.

Perhaps if the thinking women in Nebraska expressed their opinions on the subject of the equal rights amendment in writing to their senators, the results would be surprising to Sens. Proud, Hasebrook and Wiltse. They might be forced to turn about face smartly and call for repeal of the repealer.

Break With Past Not Final

Senate Republicans have been credited with throwing 127 years of tradition out the window in this week's scrapping of the seniority system of determining ranking committee members. But the much-heralded break with the past, alas, is not that final.

The compromise plan worked out in the Senate Republican conference provides that the GOP Committee on Committees determine who is to serve on each Senate committee and that the Republicans on that committee then elect their ranking member — or chairman, if they are in the majority — with seniority being only one of the qualifications. Final approval of committee choices is vested in the full conference.

Two problems are associated with this formal sacking of the seniority system by the Senate Republicans.

One is the grandfather clause written into the compromise which allows present ranking minority members — chosen by seniority — to retain their title as long as they serve in the Senate.

The second problem is that Republicans, and Democrats as well, should they institute change, might be bound by the attitude expressed by Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., who believes the new rule will be used only in extreme cases.

In voting on the ranking member, Cotton said, the senior member "would have to be so bad that his colleagues would be willing to condemn him." Cotton pointed out that the senior member's loss of the ranking member post to a less senior member might mean the senator's defeat in his next campaign for re-election.

If that attitude prevailed, the politically important motive of retaining a Senate seat for the party would hinder the final collapse of the seniority system. Which means it will be the same old ball game, no matter what rules changes are put into effect.

The Limits Of Power

LONDON — In the Washington cliché, 1973 was to be the Year of Europe. President Nixon and Henry Kissinger would repair America's economic and strategic relations with her old allies. As an earnest of that intention, the President would likely make a grand tour of Western Europe himself.

But without the promised peace in Vietnam, that vision fades. The terror bombing of Hanoi has so outraged opinion in much of Europe that the idea of closer relations with the United States has no political attraction for its leaders; hardly any could now welcome a visit by Nixon or even readily assure his safety.

That is an example of the intangible considerations affecting Nixon's power to bring about the end he wants in Vietnam. There are limits to that power, practical ones; Nixon is learning them to his frustration as Lyndon Johnson did.

The hope for a settlement must turn ultimately on such questions of power and how the two sides judge them. As Kissinger and Le Duc Tho renew their talks it may be useful to try to set out the strengths that Kissinger takes into the conference room, and the weaknesses.

The independent power of the President in the American system should never be underestimated. He is secure in office for four years, unlike a parliamentary leader, and the Constitution makes him commander-in-chief.

This President, moreover, is ready to use his power without any internal constraints of philosophical consistency or humanity. Whether one likes the idea or not, a negotiator has a certain leverage when the other side knows that his principal is a man who just could decide to lay an entire country to waste one day in a temper tantrum — and no one say him nay.

Kissinger knows also that the public's memory for horrors is short. Propaganda works. Men who do not hesitate to lie their way out of bombing hospitals will have no difficulty in claiming credit for any peace terms reached, however distant from the claimed American goals.

Among the weaknesses in Kissinger's armor must be listed the generally critical foreign view of a continuing American war in Vietnam. World opinion does not usually count for much. But Kissinger knows that renewed bombing of civilian targets in Hanoi, for instance, would arouse the disapproval of virtually every civilized country. It is easy to pick on a small place like Sweden for diplomatic retaliation, but would the U.S. want to exclude ambassadors from Italy, Canada or Australia?

Nor can domestic opposition be dismissed quite so easily. The President has a great advantage over Congress. He can always talk about "a sensitive stage in negotiations" and call for unity behind his war policy. But that game may be running out. Congress might not sit still for another round of Nixon's present weapon, terror bombing.

In the substance of the negotiations, Kissinger is at a disadvantage because his credibility was so wounded by Nixon's disavowal of the terms he negotiated. He has been trying to persuade Hanoi for four years

Goal: Good Teaching

Unless something appears to radically alter what is on the horizon, major attention in the University of Nebraska in the next few years will focus on the quality of teaching and the learning process.

Those two topics are listed first among the items for priority consideration in the five-year "toward excellence" plan adopted last week by the Board of Regents.

The priority considerations are included in a summary chapter, which, along with a chapter on basic assumptions about the university's future, was adopted by the board as official policy of the institution.

Thus, for example, it is now NU policy that "improved teaching . . . must be more than a pious proclamation."

Here's how the rest of that section goes:

"Aggressive and diligent action must be taken to assure an improvement in the effectiveness of the total learning situation on all campuses.

"A primary ingredient is effective teaching.

"This means that we must refine and improve our techniques for evaluation of teaching effectiveness and establish a clearly understood system of rewards for excellence in teaching.

"This must include salary increases, promotion, a workable system of leaves of absence for professional improvement, and general recognition within the university community.

"Similarly, this improved evaluation process must be exercised in eliminating ineffective teachers from the teaching ranks."

Those are mighty powerful words . . . so powerful, in fact, that the cynical observer may wonder how they made it past the faculty reviews of the five-year academic plan.

Most faculty members, however, would not argue with language which gives a solid direction to the university's concern about teaching.

Faculty members are inclined generally to believe in such goals as valid ones, but to argue a bit about how it's done.

Since how well teachers teach is tied to another matter, how people learn, it's also important to note that the five-year plan calls for "improved understanding of the learning process" as the second in the list of priority considerations.

Here is what that sections says:

"It is unlikely that any enterprise in America invests so much in production and so little in product research as does the enterprise of higher education.

"Our primary purpose is the education of our students; yet we spend precious little of our time or our resources in studying the most effective processes for accomplishing this objective.

"In the hope that we may find more effective ways to generate and transmit knowledge and to advance genuine learning of our students, it is proposed that one-half of one per cent of the instruction budget on each campus be set aside for this purpose in the 1973-74 budget, with the amount moving to a minimum of one per cent by the 1975-76 budget. There is a strong possibility that outside funds can be attracted to substantially augment these university resources."

That is also rather strong and promising language, and it puts a commitment to fund such research into the policy of the Board of Regents.

Already there has been a concerted, although modest effort, to make progress in these areas in the university. The Teaching Council on the Lincoln campuses is a group whose goal is improving teaching and rewarding good teachers.

And the Teaching and Learning Center on the Lincoln campuses has similar goals.

But now, for the first time, the institution's governing board has put its weight behind such efforts, as the promise of them takes on even greater importance.

The board, in its discussions of the five-year plan, probably spent more time on the matter of good teaching than any other.

And quality of teaching was a major topic of conversation the other evening when students from the three campuses met with the board for informal discussion.

Before the weekend was over, the regents had also heard a report on campus efforts to evaluate teaching effectiveness.

Thus, it appears that the efforts that began on a modest basis in the faculty and student ranks several years ago may blossom into full-blown efforts aimed squarely at how students learn and how teachers teach.

Such matters ought to warm the hearts of the many critics who have seen the university as a place only where teachers put up with students while they busy themselves with publishing and consulting.

The five-year plan will not, of course, immediately turn the heads of faculty members who are not inclined toward improvement of teaching.

But it should give more power to the many who see it as a priority consideration, and put everyone in the university on notice that good teaching is expected throughout the institution.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by the writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Free And Slave

Lincoln, Neb.

The confusion about rights is appalling even among the so-called intelligentsia. Webster's dictionary gives a long list of definitions, part of which is this: "In social and political affairs, that is right which is consonant to the laws and customs of a country, provided these laws are not repugnant to the laws of God."

Perhaps we hear so little about righteous people because they do not, as Webster says, "conform life to the divine law."

David Pardee wrote (Star, Jan. 9), "Maybe the Founding Fathers were commies, too, for they knew exactly what they were doing in guaranteeing everyone in a free society the right to express his mind."

The Founding Fathers and the Constitution gave no one such absolute right to say whatever he pleases. No one has the right to take the rights or even advocate taking those rights illegally or by force, of another person without his consent.

The communists are doing just that in South Vietnam, after agreeing to allow the people of South Vietnam to have their own country. How they run it is not the province of the communists. After all, in what communist country have the people selected their rulers?

No man is truly free unless he possesses rights in land and when someone else — be he communist or otherwise — possesses those rights, the people are enslaved. Slavery is but the absence of personal and property rights.

This sudden alert following the New Orleans shoot-out which took the lives of police and citizens alike has an old familiar ring.

Few people are willing to sacrifice their ill-gotten gains and pleasures for law and order until that law protects them from their victims.

How many Americans can deny they made these killings possible? What motivations were behind repealing the death penalty? People, good and bad, are deluded into thinking the government is doing the job just for them. No government can serve two masters. Ours is merely a referee in the battle for survival.

Now, we want to build up police power, soon military power, then the power of dictatorship.

Many Changes

Lincoln, Neb.

I never quite figured out why "Antelope Park" was so named. I never saw a one there. There was the lonely bear cave where, behind its high iron fence, the single big brown bear stood on its hind feet, forepaws tapping the top of the enclosure. Alongside were the cement-floored runs of restless coyotes. Farther along was a huge tree wherein a once broken-winged eagle perched on leafy bough or took a low flight up and around. There were fancy chickens and brightly feathered cock pheasants and their less colorful hens.

Mid-center of this area was a huge fountain whose waters rose to meet the sun. As a very small child, Papa took me to see this statted water wonder when it once stood somewhere on lower P Street near the Burlington yards. I believe it was moved to the park because of the many accidents it seemed to cause.

On a Sunday afternoon old and young flocked to these tree-shaded lawns. Lovers strolled, oldsters sat, children played or paddled in small, shallow wading pools, or licked ice-cream cones.

My sister and I, teenagers, walked here every nice Sunday to hear the band concert.

Years later a brick house sheltered the swinging monkeys, the sluggish alligators in their water pens. There were flamingos and delightful tiny gaily colored birds. Off to one side was a small room of thick wire cages where coiled or slithered a number of snakes. This has all gone into the Children's Zoo.

Many years have passed, many changes. There are no Sunday band concerts as way back when. I guess.

Rising Prices

Lincoln, Neb.

Before you go to the grocery store the next time, please read the article, "Why Food Prices Keep Rising," by James E. Roper, which appears in the January issue of Reader's Digest.

Do you know that due to the preposterous teamsters' wages, the cost of delivering bread from the bakers to the grocery store is equal to the cost of the farmer who produces the wheat, plus the cost of milling the flour, plus the cost of baking the bread? In some areas, the trucker who delivers bread receives up to 11% in addition to his wages. In Los Angeles recently, such a driver collected $10,000 in 16 months, his commission for delivering bread.

The Nixon cabinet members recently summoned supermarket operators to Washington to find out why food prices keep rising. Behind closed doors, they placed most of the blame on labor costs. One of the conferees admitted they dare not admit this publicly because "we have to live with the unions."

Union butchers' wages are so high that most supermarkets lose money on beef. They compensate by raising prices on other items. Supermarkets and consumers share some of the reasons for higher prices. Automatic check-out counters and other handling methods would cut costs. Consumers could be satisfied with fewer varieties of different items and also bag their own purchases.

As to union labor costs, they should gear their demands to production and keep in line with other wage-earners. Several unions are able to set their own wages due to their extreme power. This power should be controlled voluntarily or the federal government should control them.

Mayors Paint Rosy Picture On Crime

NEW YORK — This is the season when big-city mayors turn in their report cards to the FBI. To hear them tell it, they all earned A's for cutting crime in their streets.

In fact, their statistics are so cheery, the more trusting among us might be tempted to give three cheers — fire the watchdog and unhook the burglar alarm system. Washington, D.C., claims a 26% decrease in major crime. San Francisco reports a 14.4 drop.

New York, 16.7. Detroit, 15. Los Angeles, 4.5. Philadelphia, 12. And 77 other cities checked in with decreases.

Even the Justice Department is impressed. Attorney General Richard C. Kleindienst predicts that "in reasonable time" organized crime will be reduced to "an ordinary irritant in American society."

What fired him up most, apparently, is the fact that his figures for January through September show crime in the U.S. went up only one per cent. That's the smallest increase in 12 years, and enough to move him to proclaim "an end to the national spiraling crime rate."

Now that's the kind of prediction every American wants to believe. Years of worrying over his position as a potential muggee have him grasping gratefully for soothing statistics like these.

And then . . . along come the criminologists who say it just isn't so.

The real truth, they tell us, is that we're still taking our lives in our hands whenever we venture into certain urban areas after dark. And it's the kind of truth that can be hidden by what they call "erroneous classification" to cut down on the total of major crimes.

Most mayors (and the administration, too) are looking for Browne points in the war on crime. And policemen everywhere prefer to keep things simple. Especially assault

So, every gunshot or knife wound they can convince themselves (or the desk sergeant) involves only simple assault is just one more non-major crime they don't have to tell the FBI about.

Which means, as if you hadn't already guessed, there are still plenty of "aggravating" things like murder, rape, armed robbery and burglary still lurking out there in the shadows.

But when you throw those totals into the statistical stew with non-violent crimes — things like auto theft, drug possession, hijacking, anti-trust violation, etc. — you get a different picture. The kind that makes you think twice about walking Fido after dinner.

A melancholy example of how this works cropped up a few days ago in Philadelphia, where "law and order" Mayor Frank L. Rizzo proclaimed he has turned Philadelphia into the "safest city in America."

For proof, the man who says he was "the toughest cop in the country," produces figures showing 2,222 major crimes per 100,000 residents, compared to 2,713 in Chicago and 4,232 in New York.

What Hizzoner doesn't dwell on is that rapes, robberies and burglaries in the City of Brotherly Love went up by seven to nine per cent, gangland rumbles increased and 39 victims were murdered by teen-age gangs since he took office.

Mayor Rizzo isn't the only one. It's a safe bet that one or two other mayors in those 83 cities did what they could to pretty up the figures before they sent them along to the FBI.

What it really means is that most of them earned their A's for statistical dexterity — and that the rest of us had better not take too many midnight strolls. Even an "ordinary irritant" (as Mr. K. puts it) can make an aggravated dent in our skulls.

Lembrich Named To Welfare Post

Derald L. Lembrich was appointed a deputy director of the Nebraska Department of Public Welfare Thursday by State Welfare Director Lawrence Graham.

Lembrich, chief of personnel and training for the department during the past two years, succeeds Dwight High who resigned to take a post with the HEW regional office in Kansas City.

Lembrich, a native of Sheridan County, graduated from the University of

Derald Lembrich

Deputy Director

Nebraska in 1950 and earned his master's degree in 1964 at New York University.

Lembrich joined the department in 1970 after a 20-year career in the Army which included duty in Korea and Vietnam. He is married and has three children.

To fill the vacancy left by Lembrich's appointment, Graham also promoted David L. Prokesh from administrative assistant to chief of personnel and training.

Prokesh, a 1961 NU graduate, joined the department in 1969 as a field representative after serving as a county welfare director for 7 years. He is married and has four children.

Roads Double-Check Plan Readied

By The Associated Press

A legislative study subcommittee is reportedly preparing a bill to establish a double check of information used by the State Roads Department in decisions on use of the department's road-building funds.

The recommendation is one of several under preparation by the committee headed by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly.

Warner said he sees the action as a move toward "prudent control" by the Legislature of the $100 million annual budget of the Roads Department.

The recommendation would create a group of persons, separate from the Roads Department, to gather information similar to figures now compiled by the Roads Department for use in a rating of the 10,000 mile state highway system and a determination of which roads merit improvement.

The subcommittee study grew out of a request in the 1972 Legislature for an investigation of the Roads Department amid charges the state has lost federal road-building funds because of a decision not to use bond financing for construction purposes.

One of the subcommittee's conclusions was that the Legislature has no method of checking department performance and plans, other than figures provided by the department.

The sufficiency rating survey used by the department on the state highway system uses several factors, all weighted in rating roads numerically on a scale from zero to 100. Those surfaces falling below 70 or 80 are generally considered inadequate and in need of improvement or replacement.

Packers Warned

Rio de Janeiro (U) —The Brazilian government warned meatpackers it will tax beef exports if local meat prices do not come down.

Investigation 'Insufficient' To Deter The Drug Problem

Omaha (U) — A district Court Judge says Omaha is "not getting sufficient investigation and enforcement to deter the drug problem."

Judge Samuel Caniglia commented in the wake of a decision by District Court judges, by a 9-3 vote, not to call a grand jury to investigate the drug problem.

Caniglia had proposed the grand jury.

Presiding Judge John Burke said he viewed the problem as "too big" for a local grand jury to handle.

Caniglia said he has been convinced, through talks with youths appearing in his court, that 50% of Omaha high school students "have either tried or are on drugs."

Caniglia noted the last grand jury called, in 1964, recommended that grand juries be called regularly.

Burke noted a federal grand jury is in session in Omaha. He said that jury has more authority than a local one would wield.

"What if the local grand jury found out the drugs were coming from Chicago or St. Louis," Burke said. "It has no authority to subpoena witnesses even across the river from Iowa."

AIM Leaders Issue Threats

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders said Thursday the return of the Black Hills of South Dakota to the Indian people is among the organization's short-range goals.

"We're still the landlords here," said Carter Camp, an AIM leader from Ponca, Okla., "and we're putting the white people on notice that their 200th anniversary in 1976 will be a very unhappy one unless they return our Black Hills to us."

The United States will observe its bicentennial anniversary in 1976.

Year To Remember

Camp also said that 1973 alone would be a year to remember for the whites.

"I would like to tell the white people this is going to be a year they'll never forget," he said. "Now we're moving as an Indian nation and we're going to keep moving."

In Nebraska, John Two Birds Arbuckle, an AIM coordinator from Lincoln, said a Friday confrontation at Valentine would be one of the first moves.

The confrontation, he said, will be in protest of assault and resisting arrest charges filed against three Indian youths there after they were dragged from a home on Dec. 20 and beaten by law enforcement officers.

Drop Charges

"We are going to be asking that the charges be dropped," Arbuckle said. "And we're also going to be asking that criminal charges be filed against those responsible for the beatings."

The three were identified as Robert Fashorse, Dennis Bear Runner and Edgar Bear Runner. The confrontation will take place as a county court hearing on the charges is in progress.

Indians participating, Arbuckle said, are to come from Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota, Colorado, Arizona and Nebraska.

Only Beginning

Frank Thomas, a medicine man of the Iroquois nation from Ontario, Canada, said the Valentine effort would be only the beginning. He said the Indians would no longer stick to peaceful ways.

"We have kept the peace for hundreds of years," he said. "But now we're going to settle this thing one way or another."

The three said the action movement is being made possible by a new feeling of unity among the Indian people. They also said the unity results primarily from the Bureau of Indian Affairs Building takeover last fall in Washington, D.C.

One Of Six

Camp was involved in the incident and said he was one of six persons named in a conspiracy indictment in connection with it.

Thomas said the takeover showed that the AIM organization is the one to lead the Indian action movement.

"The American Indian Movement is the answer to unity," he said. "They are the people of action."

Camp termed the Valentine protest a forerunner of future actions to be taken by the AIM group to show its strength.

Indian People

"Now it's not an individual Indian or family fighting against oppression," he said. "It's going to be the Indian people."

Arbuckle said another action to take place in Nebraska is an attempt to get legislation introduced in the Unicameral to turn Ft. Robinson over to the Indians for use as a reservation.

A sponsor for such legislation has not been found as yet, he said, but Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha would be contacted.

Federal lands were officially deeded over to the state earlier this week and were accepted by the State Game Commission. The Ft. Robinson land was the cause of a confrontation in November, which included the takeover of the museum building.

Cold Eases Somewhat; Scottsbluff Has High

Nebraska's cold spell eased somewhat Thursday with temperatures climbing above the freezing mark in the west.

Scottsbluff's high stood at 35 degrees while Sidney reported 34 and Imperial 32.

In Lincoln the day's top reading was 20 after a low of two below zero.

North Platte's nine below was the state's lowest.

Meanwhile, moderate to heavy floating ice was reported on the Missouri River Thursday, except for ice bridges below Rulo where flood stage was reached during the morning.

Services Planned For Youth Killed In Gun Mishap

Norfolk — Funeral services were scheduled Saturday for a Wausa youth who was killed in a hunting accident.

The victim was 11-year-old Kyle Fred Whaley. He was the son of the Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whaley of Wausa.

The accident occurred Thursday, north of Magnet.

WAVERLY YOUTH INJURED IN PLANE CRASH

Eighteen-year-old David Bettis of Waverly was listed in good condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital Thursday after the plane he was piloting crashed while landing at Arrow Airport, 5401 No. 48th. Lancaster County Sheriff's Deputy Mike Sweet reported that witnesses said the plane bounced on the runway, veered to the left, cartwheeled once and nosed into the ground. The plane, a single-engine Cessna 150 was declared a total loss. Bettis suffered facial lacerations and the loss of a tooth. (Star Photo.)

Ag Leaders Weary Of Farm Cuts

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Nebraska farm leaders are beginning to show signs of weariness over the continuing series of announcements from Washington on cuts and changes in farm programs.

The latest announcement of a cancellation of the set-aside requirement for wheat growers, coupled with permission to graze cattle on diverted and set-aside acreage held out of crop production drew a limited reaction from state farm leaders.

Mickey Stewart, executive secretary of the Nebraska Stockgrowers Assn., said: "The reaction of our people is certain to be negative. The organization has always opposed grazing livestock on diverted acres and so has the American National Cattlemen's Assn."

Stewart does not think the action will lower meat prices. "I suspect the initial effect will be to increase the demand for feeder cattle, driving up prices for cattle that can be run on pasture."

"Some people are going to hold back more heifers, which will reduce the number of cattle available for fattening for market in a feed lot."

Price Rise Seen
"My guess is that the immediate effect will be to drive meat prices in the store up sharply, which is exactly the opposite of what they say they want," he said.

Stewart predicted the longterm effect would be bad for cattlemen. "Eventually this will result in a big increase in livestock numbers, hurting producers. What is disgusting is that we have never asked for a dime of government help. We have always stood on our own two feet, taking our licks when prices were down. Now that they are up we are being punished for our independence," he said.

Elton Berck, president of the Nebraska Farm's Union, suggested a series of statewide conferences was needed to examine the impact of the series of events that have affected agriculture recently.

"It should not be a protest meeting. You dissipate your strength that way. We need to look at the whole picture and try to see what can be done to adapt to the changes."

"We have a situation of utter chaos now. The grazing of diverted acres is a time bomb that could prove to be a disaster for the livestock industry. You can change crop programs in a year and correct a disaster in a year but a livestock problem is a longterm one."

This will undoubtedly result in more wheat this spring and I can see a problem developing in the feed grain area too," he said.

Glenn Kreuscher, state director of agriculture, said "This isn't going to make more winter wheat. I understand that the USDA is selling all the 1971 corn it has. This won't help either."

"We have grain to sell but we can't sell it for any price in many areas of the state because there simply isn't any way to haul it to market."

"This is the real problem with the price of food in the stores. Transportation is the key," he said.

"We need a long range planning system to handle the production of food and fiber. These jerky panic-stricken reactions are likely to bring on surpluses and a prime disaster as quickly as we had the increase."

"How on earth is a farmer going to plan? How long is the grazing to stay on? Are they going to cut back on meat imports if our cattle numbers increase?"

"Keep in mind that the food shortage is mostly a problem of transportation, not due to any action by farmers," he said.

No Action Is Planned In Shooting Of Suspect

Omaha — Police Chief Richard Andersen says no action will be taken against an Omaha policeman who wounded a man suspected of stealing two cartons of cigarettes and then tried to escape arrest.

Following an investigation, Andersen said he decided Patrolman Michael McGowan had "done nothing wrong."

On Sunday afternoon, McGowan received a call of a shoplifting and became involved in an auto chase which ended when the suspect jumped out of a car and fled on foot.

Police reports show that McGowan at that point fired at the suspect and wounded him in the left arm. The suspect, Terry L. Thomas, 28, was released from a hospital Wednesday and was served a felony warrant charging him with unlawful flight to avoid arrest while operating a motor vehicle.

The City Personnel Board in November of 1969 passed a resolution prohibiting officers from shooting at a suspect of a minor crime. That action came shortly after a white officer shot and killed a 14-year-old black girl while investigating a break-in report.

Andersen said the fact that Thomas used an auto to escape made him a felony suspect. Andersen said if the man only fled on foot, the officer would have been wrong in shooting.

It was determined later that Thomas also had another felony warrant on file charging him with fraudulent use of credit cards.

Schulte joined the Syracuse faculty in 1969 after teaching four years at Pennsylvania State University. He became acting dean of the school last February. He previously was a correspondent for United Press in Madrid, London and New York.

Two Injured In Shooting

Two men apparently shot each other early Friday morning at 946 Adams as the result of an argument stemming from a previous disagreement, police said.

One man suffered a shotgun wound to the chest and the other suffered a .22 cal. bullet wound in the arm, police reported.

Both were taken to Lincoln General Hospital. The man suffering the shotgun wound was apparently seriously injured.

Omaha Sisters Win Lawsuit Against Store

Omaha — Two sisters were awarded $15,000 each from an Omaha discount store Wednesday in a suit for "false arrest and imprisonment and malicious prosecution."

A Douglas County District Court jury awarded the sums to Mrs. Kathleen Schmidt Clifton and Jayne Schmidt, who brought suit against Richman Gorman Inc.

According to testimony, the women purchased a birthday present for their father, a shirt and sweater-vest, and placed the sweater over the shirt as they looked for a matching tie.

The women testified they told the cashier the sweater and vest were separate items. Their attorney, Arthur O'Leary, said they apparently were not charged the full amount and the women were arrested by a security guard.

O'Leary said they spent four hours in jail but charges of petty larceny were later dropped.

Omaha — Dale Kyser stood tall on his one leg and extended a handshake to his visitors.

Then, the young man from Hav Springs sat down to talk without bitterness about the ranch accident that took his other leg.

Kyser, 20, who attended Chadron State College on a partial athletic scholarship until last summer, was a

Weather Threatens Cutoff In Electricity

Kansas City — Utilities in 60 Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska communities have been cut off from their primary fuel and are running low on their alternate, posing a threat to electrical services in those areas.

The regional director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, Francis X. Tobin, said he was "quite concerned" that the continued cold weather could cause serious problems.

The primary fuel for the utilities natural gas has been curtailed by the gas companies because the utilities are interruptible gas customers. He said in times of shortage such as extremely cold weather, gas is cut off to "low priority" users and sent directly to priority users such as homes and apartment houses.

"We are not terming the situation critical, but we are quite concerned about what will happen if the winter continues as cold as it has been," Tobin said. "The big utilities in the big cities seem to be doing okay, but it is the 60 small ones, serving communities of 2,000 to 3,000 population we are worried about."

Tobin said some hospitals in Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri and school systems in Iowa are interruptible customers. He said one Missouri hospital was down to a 4-day supply of its number two source — fuel oil. And the 40-school Waterloo, Iowa, district has a 2-week reserve of fuel oil. A dozen federal buildings in Nebraska have been ordered to reduce building temperatures to 65 degrees.

Tobin said the shortage is also affecting trucks and municipal transportation systems in the region, with some truck lines having to ration diesel fuel.

Tobin said pipelines into the 4-state region are running near capacity but the OEP has learned that 72% of the products carried last week were gasoline and jet fuel — not the badly needed No. 2 fuel oil and natural gas. He said refineries apparently consider it good business to move the gasoline and jet fuel because the price freeze froze those commodities at a higher price than the No. 2 fuel oil.

Exon Plans Meeting On Fuel Crisis

A meeting will be conducted by Gov. J. James Exon Friday to discuss the fuel shortage.

The governor's office said the meeting would be held in Exon's conference room and would be open to the press.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. and the governor's office said it would be open to the news media.

To attend are representatives of the oil industry, state senators and representatives of the various state agencies.

Sens. Curtis, Hruska Ask For Fuel Oil Relief

Washington (UPI) — Sens. Carl T. Curtis and Roman L. Hruska, in a letter to the chairman of the Oil Imports Appeals Board, Thursday said Nebraska and the Midwest need something besides "slick maneuvering" to solve their fuel oil shortages.

The senators told Louis S. Flagg III of Arlington, Va.: "We have communities with only a one-day supply for homes, schools, hospitals and institutions for the elderly."

They added that Flagg's board has "at least one application and perhaps more pending that would bring known foreign reserves of fuel oil into the United States almost immediately to meet this crisis, if the board takes favorable action today (Thursday)."

The two senators said they had been advised by Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon that he had urged similar action in a telegram to Flagg Wednesday night.

They said the appeals board "offers the only immediate hope for the relief that is needed" because efforts of the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) to deal effectively with the critical shortage have not worked.

OEP's announcement Jan. 8 and one by the Interior Dept. the following day that they had authorized additional imports of up to 250 million gallons of No. 2 fuel oil from a single supplier in the Virgin Islands produced only false hope, the senators said.

Woman, 82, Remains In 'Critical' Condition

An 82-year-old woman remained in "critical" condition at Lincoln General Hospital Thursday, following a two-car collision Wednesday at 27th and Old Cheney Rd. in which two persons were killed.

According to the State Patrol, Charles L. Dort, 88, of 1936 Pawnee and Clara L. Anderson, 69, of 1935 Pawnee were fatally injured in the collision.

Mrs. G. E. Doerck, 82, 1936 Pawnee was listed in critical condition with head, chest and internal injuries.

The driver of the first car, Leonard W. Hill, 76, of 1943 Pawnee, and two other passengers, Mrs. Leonard Hill and Walter Houle 76, of Berkeley, Calif., were being held for observation at the hospital. The Hill auto was carrying six persons.

The driver of the second car, Edward Brehm, 31, of 906 Indian Hill, was not injured. Brehm was eastbound on 27th and Hill southbound on Old Cheney Rd., according to the State Patrol.

A Long Time

Recife, Brazil — Josefa Margarida Maria da Silva, 100, and her consort, Jose Inacio da Silva, 71, got around to marriage after 42 years together.

On Monday, Kyser will return to Chadron State, where he will continue majoring in physical education. He wants to coach track, basketball and football in high school.

"This is what I know," he said. "I can't see any reason to change my plans now."

Southeast High Gymnasiums, Pool Will Open On Sundays

Starting Jan. 28th, Lincolnsites will have a new place to play on Sunday afternoons—at Southeast High School's gymnasiums and swimming pool.

The program, authorized by the Parks and Recreation Board Thursday, will keep the high school open for six Sundays, on a trial basis.

Two gyms and the pool will be open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., at no charge to the public.

Superintendent of Recreation Dick Leker encouraged families to participate in the activities and noted that supervisory personnel will be present.

The Parks and Recreation Department will be paying for the necessary custodial and supervisory staff out of the $1,000 prize money awarded the department for placing first in recent national competition.

Top Spot Won

Lincoln won the top spot in the Class II field for cities in the 100,000-250,000 population range in competition sponsored by the National Sports Foundation. Leker reported that the School Board has approved the plan and that it will cost from $125 to $150 each Sunday to keep Southeast open.

The $1,000 award was to be used for projects the department was unable to fund previously, he said.

Superintendent of Parks Dick Hilligus reported that he will present proposed rules and regulations for snowmobile use to the city Legal Department this week.

Farm Home Burglarized

Lesler J. Schreiber, who lives in a farm home about 16 miles north of Lincoln, told Lancaster County Sheriff's deputies that a burglar pried open a rear door and took articles valued at $230.

The articles included a toaster, waffle iron, two radios, a movie projector, electric broiler and a television set.

On Jan. 2nd the City Council established regulations for operation of snowmobiles on public streets and in city parks.

Operation Limited

The ordinance prohibits operation of the vehicles on public streets except under emergency conditions and allows operation only in those parks designated as snowmobile areas by the Parks and Recreation Department.

Areas for snowmobile use will be announced in the next few weeks, Hilligus said.

He also noted that the Park Ranger Patrol reported $235 of reportable vandalism and property damage in city parks for the month of December.

The Park Ranger Activity Report for 1972 showed that rangers patrolled a total of 90,785 miles in Lincoln last year, issued 953 traffic citations and handled 17 traffic accidents.

Reportable vandalism for the year hit the $3,851 mark. A total of 112 arrests, not counting juveniles, were made

Two Hospitalized After Accident Near Cortland

Two persons were hospitalized at Lincoln General Hospital Thursday following a head-on collision early Thursday morning near Cortland on U.S. Highway 77.

Ellen Krauter, 52, of Cortland, was listed in satisfactory condition and Susan Orwen, 22, of 940 Groveland was listed in good condition. A third person, Linda Dischner, 22, of 3327 S was treated and released.

The State Patrol said one car, driven by Linda Dischner, was southbound, and the other, driven by Susan Orwen, was northbound. Ellen Krauter was a passenger in the Dischner auto.

Burials Delayed

Forli, Italy (AP) — Burials in this town of 65,000 were delayed for more than a week while authorities determined that no value-added tax was due on renting tombs for burials in the municipal cemetery. The value-added tax is a form of sales levy.

GOP To Oppose Try To Nix Rights Ratification

Republican State Chairman Milan Bish of Grand Island Thursday said Nebraska's Republican Party will oppose a legislative resolution to withdraw Nebraska's ratification of the equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Bish made the announcement after polling the party's legislative "instant response" committee.

In other reaction, the governing board of the Nebraska Young Americans for Freedom voted to support the repeal resolution.

State Chairman Terrell Cannon said the equal rights amendment "could be abused so as to halt the administrative functioning of our nation, making private and governmental decisions the subject of litigation requiring years."

State Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln suggested that letters opposing the amendment "represent localized interest" and are "but a drop in the bucket compared to the voices of most Nebraska women."

The amendment requires that men and women "be treated equally, not identically," she said.

Carol Postom, president of the Women's Equity Action League, said her organization is "marshalling all our efforts to oppose this regrettable resolution."

Legislative clerk Brown said he does not know whether there is any legal impediment to Nebraska reversing the ratification "because there's no law on the subject."

Brown said it may be that Congress can elect to take any action it wants. It might, for example, recognize the first ratification resolution, but not the repealer.

He said also there is even question how many votes are required to rescind. The original ratification resolution needed 30 approving votes in the 49-member Legislature, or three-fifths approval. Normal resolutions need only 25 approving votes

Cuts' Effect On Housing Is 'Purely Speculative'

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The effect on Lincoln's low income housing programs as a result of announced administration cutbacks in federal aid to low income families is "purely speculative," Lincoln Housing Authority members were told Thursday.

Authority Executive Director Dick Burke said at first there was some apprehension that "we'd lose our leased housing program and have to put 1,000 people out in the streets—but that's not going to happen."

"It looks like the dry-up will just effect new programs," he said, adding, "We're sound fiscally."

Burke also reported that, if federal officials approve the money, a smoke detector and sprinkler system may be installed in the 120-unit Havelock high rise apartment building.

More Protection
He noted he had met recently with local fire, building and architectural officials to discuss providing additional protection over and above local fire safety requirements.

Concern for the additional fire detection systems was expressed following a recent high rise apartment fire in Atlanta, where a number of people died from smoke inhalation.

Burke noted that Omaha area Housing and Urban Development officials had approved $80,000 for additional steel reinforcement in the high rise to guard against possible earthquakes.

Construction of the eight-story apartment building for the elderly continues, Burke said, with completion set for June.

'Mahoney Manor'
The Housing Authority officially named the facility, "Mahoney Manor" honoring fellow commissioner, J. P.

Florida Man Is Arrested By FBI In Lincoln

Local law enforcement officials arrested a 47-year-old Florida man Thursday evening as he arrived in Lincoln on a flight originating in Arlington, Tenn.

The Lincoln FBI identified the man as Namic Gungor, 47, of Orlando, Fla., and said he was wanted on a warrant authorized by Federal District Court in Salt Lake City for bank larceny.

Bank larceny is a federal felony and the FBI said the court had recommended a bond of $500,000.

He was arrested at Duncan Aviation without incident. The pilot of the Lear jet confirmed that the plane had come from Tennessee.

Kids Will Try For The Title Of 'Fastest Sled'

Woman Qualifies

Fortaleza, Brazil (AP) — Margarida Carvalho is the first woman to qualify for the job of police chief in northern Brazil's Ceara State, the government reported. She scored highest among 22 candidates in a civil service test.

Mahoney who has served on the Authority for 21 years.

In other business Burke reported that to date 239 units have been sold in Arnold Heights, with 730 currently occupied and five available for rent.

The Authority authorized payment of full 1973 taxes amounting to $66,230.84 on 137 homes sold in Arnold Heights during the past year.

To date, Burke noted that $2,232,000 has been received from sale of Arnold Heights' homes, which has been applied to reduce the $5.9 million debt to the General Services Administration for the 1,000 units originally purchased by the Authority in northwest Lincoln.

Mrs. Todd Is Elected By Tenants

Edwina Todd, 31, a community organization outreach worker for the Lincoln Indian Center, was elected president of the City-Wide Tenants Association Thursday night.

She succeeds Bea Richmond, president of the organization since its inception in 1970.

In stepping down, Mrs. Richmond said she is not abandoning the group, but will "continue to apply pressure where and when it is needed."

"I was too much in the limelight as president," she explained. "Now, hopefully, I'll be able to work behind the scenes and dig deeper without directly involving the Tenants Association."

Mrs. Todd, a native of Montana, said she worked with numerous low-income groups and Indian organizations there before moving to Lincoln a year and a half ago.

Other officers elected include Harlan Chamberlain, vice president; Robin Burbach, secretary-treasurer; Marilyn Tysen, community coordinator and Nick Meinhardt, public relations director.

Negligence Suit Asks $1.1 Million In Two Deaths

Denver (AP) — The parents of two boys who died from carbon monoxide fumes that seeped into the family camper have filed a $1.1 million wrongful death and negligence suit against the firm that sold them the camper.

Named as defendant in the Denver District Court suit was Mitchell and Sons, also known as Mitchell Recreational Vehicles, a camper dealer in Adams County. The suit was filed by Frank E. Holland and his wife, Lois, of Denver.

According to the suit, 12-year-old Frank Daniel Holland and nine-year-old Charles Bruce Holland were found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning Oct. 13 near Dillon after their father stopped for gas. Two other children in the camper, ten-year-old William and nine-year-old Melton, a stepchild, were ill but still alive.

1,700 Volunteers Will Distribute New Testament

A total of 45,000 paperback copies of the New Testament will be distributed March 4 in Lincoln and Lancaster County by about 1,700 volunteers from 54 area churches.

According to Dr. Glover Leitch of the First Presbyterian Church, chairman of the steering committee, the Bible distribution is one of the main 1973 church activities ecumenically adopted throughout the nation.

Delegates will meet Feb. 18 in Lincoln for a training session and to receive distribution areas for the one-day campaign.

McMasters Backing A Start For Drug ProjectBy MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Drug Commission was told Thursday that the Lincoln Drug Service Project could be started with funds sufficient to pay ongoing expenses, the houseparents and a director.

Although he didn't identify the amount, Drug Commission Director Eric McMasters said he believes the project should be initiated as soon as a sufficient amount of cash is in hand and the remainder is in the offing.

At its meeting, the Drug Commission approved the proposal for the project which would cost some $73,000 in its first year of operation in a scaled-down version.

The project would include a drug contact and counseling center and a transitional living facility for youthful drug abusers.

No such service exists in the city now.

Drug Commission approval means the project proposal, coupled with a recommendation to seek local funding for it, will go to the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs for its consideration.

The proposal has been scaled back from a $140,000 project sent to the National Institute of Mental Health. But NIMH, which has no funds available, decided not to approve it.

With the prospects of unavailability of funds predicted, the Drug Commission late last year had instructed its Treatment Resources Committee to draft a less ambitious proposal and prepare to seek local funds.

McMasters said Thursday that although it may take as many as three months to visit with all the possible funding sources locally, the project could be started with a smaller amount of cash and good prospects for the remainder.

The Drug Commission also recommended, as the Treatment Resources Committee had suggested, that the Lincoln-Lancaster Mental Health Center might include the Drug Service Project as part of its drug abuse component.

The center is preparing a proposal for federal funding, and it must include a drug component in the project.

In other matters, the Drug Commission elected Jackie Lewis, a community representative, as its new chairman, succeeding Don Nielson.

Committee Formed

The commission also established a committee to nominate potential members for commission vacancies and to survey current member participation.

One member, Jaycee representative Roger Egan, noted the county medical society member rarely attended and complained that his absence was indicative of the "medical association attitude" toward drug abuse and alcoholism.

Egan described that attitude as "total non-cooperation."

McMasters noted that the "only doctors involved" are those who work for agencies involved, and he said the commission needs the viewpoint of the private practitioner.

"Maybe we could support socialized medicine," to get the doctors' attention, Egan quipped.

ROY WILLIAMS*Defense Choice 'Won't Rule Out' Using Nuclear Arms In Vietnam

Washington (AP) — President Nixon's nominee to be deputy secretary of defense said Thursday he would not rule out the limited use of nuclear weapons against North Vietnam if the Paris peace talks broke down completely.

"But that's not to say that I would be in favor of it," William P. Clements Jr., a 53-year-old Dallas oilman, told the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Clements commented in response to a question by Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, who repeated an earlier statement that he may try to block the nominations of Clements, and Elliot L. Richardson, as secretary of defense, in protest against Nixon's war policies.

Hughes told Clements, as he told Richardson at a hearing Wednesday, that he had nothing personally against either man.

Clements otherwise sailed through his two-hour confirmation hearing with all indications that he would gain quick committee approval.

The slight, graying Texan, founder and board chairman of Sedco, Inc., a worldwide oil drilling concern, was not asked directly about recent news reports of his involvement in a civil suit in Dallas federal court in which he and others are accused of conspiracy and fraud.

School Bus Radios Praised At Shelton

Shelton (AP) — The use of two-way radios in school buses at Shelton is paying dividends.

Not only have worries about children becoming stranded in a snow storm been eased, but time spent with en route mechanical problems has been minimized.

Radios in the Shelton system's four buses were installed at a cost of $407 per unit in November. According to Supt. Jim Berryman, the State Board of Education obtained the radios at a discount and made them available to individual school systems.

He said two of Shelton's buses become stranded two years ago in a severe snow storm. Two recent bus breakdowns were solved by use of radios, said bus superintendent Glen Garrett.

Garrett said reception was excellent within about 25 miles. The system is wired into the state emergency band, with a base station at Gibbon High School.

"Some of Shelton's bus runs are 70 miles long and the drivers were out of touch with the town for up to two hours," Garrett commented.

Now they are only a call to the base station away from help.

3 Suits Filed Against United In Chicago Crash

Chicago (AP) — Three more suits were filed against United Airlines Thursday, bringing to $25.6 million the amount of money sought in the Dec. 8 crash of a United jetliner.

The plane went down on approach to Midway Airport, killing 45 persons and injuring 18.

In the suits filed in Circuit Court, John H. Rauen Jr., 52, of suburban Naperville, a survivor, asks $100,000; survivors of Arnold L. Ender, of Kearney, Neb., seek $4 million and survivors of Donald P. Whitney, Beatrice, Neb., seek $3 million.

Inner-City 4-H Program In Its Sixth Year

A program targeted for low income youth not being served by other agencies is beginning its sixth year of activities in the Lincoln area.

This program, an extension of the typical 4-H organization, was started in 1967 by Mrs. Dorothea Holstein, former associate state 4-H leader at the University of Nebraska.

Lincoln. Initial funding was provided by a grant from The Reader's Digest.

According to Barbara Sawyer, NU area youth specialist, the purpose of the program is to provide wholesome activities through inner-city 4-H clubs for the child who hasn't had the opportunity to belong to an organization.

"Organizations such as Campfire Girls and Boy Scouts just can't reach everyone," she said. "Every child should have the opportunity to benefit from the positive experiences an organization can provide."

The Inner-City 4-H program, headquartered in the Lancaster County extension office, has grown to about 50 active clubs in the Lincoln area alone. The typical club is five to seven members, but may be as large as 20 members, Miss Sawyer said.

Clubs are led by volunteer leaders, many of whom are members of the NU collegiate 4-H club.

Voc Rehab Complex Eyed

Sidney (AP) — A proposal is being considered to establish a vocational rehabilitation complex on the campus of Western Nebraska Technical College near here.

The proposal calls for remodeling the old eight-building hospital complex that was once the site of the Sioux Ordinance Depot.

J. D. Schwaninger, state supervisor of facilities development and grants-in-aid, said the Panhandle had been designated as a priority area for some type of vocational education program for the handicapped.

Garry Cartwright, director of the Division of Rehabilitation Services, said he is "interested in seeing that facilities are available for persons who don't have them, and the Panhandle definitely needs them."

He said information will be gathered concerning the needs of the area and the possible use of the Sidney campus.

Acapulco will be a regular port of call for the British cruise ship "Spirit of London". This was the first time. The crew was very curious about the town — which will soon be old hat to them.

I haven't seen Acapulco from the sea for many a long year. We used to come into the harbor steering in line with old Fort Santiago. It dates back to the time when Pacific galleons made port here.

Texans, taken prisoner in their war of independence, were jailed in the fort.

Now, from the sea, the brown stoned walls are almost lost in the rising town. At night, the Costera Road along the bay is a line of jeweled lights. Luxurious high-rise hotels are built at high-rise prices.

We chugged in on the ship's small boat, and I caught a taxi whose driver immediately asked for twice the usual fare.

I said: "Senor, the last time I paid 30 pesos."

He said: "Prices have risen. It is the cost of living. When were you here before?"

I said: "Enough time. I was here a couple of years ago."

He said: "Then you must let me take you to Rebecca's. All new girls. Beautiful. Stylish. Young."

I said: "I heard Rebecca had died."

He said: "The heirs continue the business. It is better than ever."

Acapulco is a worldly town now. Filled with elegant tourists. Expensive shops. Cruise ships cause little excitement.

We used to come in here every three months on a coffee ship with 12 passengers. A Chinese deck crew. Swedish engineers. A ship of all nations flying the flag of Panama.

The whole town turned out — all 10 blocks of it.

They came out to the ship and brought drinks and got roaring drunk.

I stood the gangway watch and took away their pistols. Everybody carried a pistol. In the exuberance of visiting the ship they were apt to fire a few joy shots into the overhead.

The taxi driver said: "Charming girls. Senor. Gallant ladies."

I said: "I have 10 girls waiting for me. I'm manager of an all girl orchestra. Let's go to the Acapulco Princess."

The taxi driver said: "What a fine profession."

At the Princess, Raoul Sanchez came down to the breezy bar and gave me a hugging abrazo. He's the manager of the hotel. Acapulco's newest. It is built like an Aztec pyramid.

He said: "We are full. Complete. Beautifully full. At Christmas season we had families — three or four hundred children. Do you know most of the teenagers carry switchblade knives?"

"They sat in our chairs and zip!" They slashed the leather. The damage was a mess. I couldn't believe it."

Raoul was manager of the de Cortes in Mexico City when I used to stay there. The old convent turned into a hotel. An enormous courtyard with flowers and a tinkling fountain.

He said: "I've risen in the world. Then I had 32 rooms. Now I have 777 rooms. I have 1,500 permanent employees — 1,700 now in the season."

Raoul Sanchez is one of the great hotel men of Mexico. He was famous for personal attention. He arranged for me to get married at the de Cortes.

He said: "It is very simple. All you need is a certificate of a blood test." He said: "Don't trouble yourself. I will send two bellboys to take the blood tests for you." And he did.

GRACIA SIEB

A trip abroad, a weekend in Las Vegas, several days on the ski slopes of Colorado — these are the grand prizes that will be presented to winners of the Nebraska Art Association membership contest. Other award recipients will receive the opportunity to select a treasure from the Sheldon Gallery Art Shop.

Details of the contest, which is being held for the purpose of broadening the Association's support throughout Lincoln and the state of Nebraska, will be revealed at the organization's annual membership luncheon which will take place at Sheldon Gallery on Monday, Jan. 22.

The luncheon will begin at noon, and anyone interested in becoming active in the Association is cordially invited to attend the event, meet the current members, and learn about the contest and other activities undertaken by the organization.

Another highlight of the luncheon will be a talk to be presented by Jon Nelson who serves as assistant curator of Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery. Mr. Nelson will discuss the topic, "Collecting Prints For Your Home."

Anyone desiring further information about the luncheon or about membership in the Art Association, is asked to contact either Mrs. A. Craig O'Brien, 423-4157, or Mrs. W. K. Dalton, 423-4372.

THE UNION COLLEGE CONCERT ORCHESTRA... will be featured in concert in the College Auditorium on Saturday evening, Jan. 13. Also participating in the 8 o'clock program, which will be under the direction of Ellis Olson, will be the college's two visiting string instructors, Mrs. Carol Work and Mrs. Jean Saiser.

THE PULITZER PRIZE-WINNING PLAY... "A Delicate Balance," written by Edward Albee, will open Friday evening, Jan. 12 at the Lincoln Community Playhouse, 2500 So. 56th St. Under the direction of John R. Wilson, the play will also be presented on Jan. 13, 19-21, 26-28, and Feb. 1-4. The curtain will rise at 8:30 p.m. on all evenings except Sundays, when the performances will begin at 7:30 p.m. Appearing in the starring roles will be Robert Stuewig and Marie Muffley, who will portray an affluent couple who find their carefully-balanced household suddenly disrupted by their daughter, who has undergone the dissolution of her fourth marriage, and by a neighborhood couple who take advantage of their friends' hospitality. Patricia Dickeson will be seen in the role of the leading lady's sister; Bob Leinberger and Gretchen Dye will play the neighborhood couple; and Ardis Paden will appear as the oft-divorced daughter. Arthur Kuhr has designed the set for the play whose author is best-known for his dramatization.

EAT—And Grow Thin

Josephine Lowman

Well, I am glad it's over even if it was fun! I refer to the siege against our willpower and our figures by those saboteurs, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years. It lasted six weeks and during that time many a lovely measurement surrendered. Now we must repair the damage.

This is a wonderful time to lose extra pounds. Most of us gather a few during the holidays and some of you have had many for a long time. The next few weeks provide smooth going without any of the temptations which special fiesta days bring. Then too, New Year's resolutions are still warm with enthusiasm.

This is the third day of my eight-week Beauty Improvement Plan (Bip for short). If you have been following this you now know what your ideal weight is, how many calories you should have daily to lose from two to two-and-a-half-pounds a week, and you have been given slimming menus for one day and two exercises.

Measurements are very important to figure beauty. If your measurements were perfect, you would not have to worry about how much you weigh. Yet often women consider pounds only I do not mean to indicate that you do not have to diet if you are overweight. However many overweight women have measurements which are in good ratio while others who are the ideal weight are completely out of line in some area.

Most of my readers who follow Bip want to lose weight. However, others simply wish to bring out of proportion measurements into line, improve their posture, beautify their complexion and hair, and capture that extra portion of health and energy which makes life swing and zing.

I think you should keep a record of your measurements as well as your weight. Measure yourself carefully now and then every two weeks from then on. It is discouraging to measure more often than that. Here is how you do it.

Measure around the fullest part of your bust, around your natural waistline, around the fullest part of your abdomen and also the fullest part of your hips. Also measure your thighs and your calves at the fullest part.

Try to measure the same way each time. Be sure the tape goes straight around your body, not up or down. Also pull it to the same tautness each time. If you wear a bra, be sure to wear the same one every time. Tomorrow I will bring you more information about measurements so you can decide what you should aim for.

ABBY: you were right ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You are right, but only partially. In the U.S.A. people equate fat with ugly and thin with beauty. However, in the South American countries the opposite is true.

When I was a child living in Bolivia (my parents were missionaries) my mother was constantly told, "Senora would be very beautiful if she would put on some weight."

My mother was beautiful by American standards, but she was far from thin. J.D.C.

DEAR J.D.C.: Easy on the propaganda for Bolivia! Let the South American preference for hefty get around in overfed U.S. and the stampede south could sink the southern continent!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a small apartment and have only a dining area adjoining the kitchen.

I had a small dinner party — my husband's boss and his wife, another couple, and us. I had no help, which was no problem as I am well organized.

After the dessert, the boss' wife said, "Oh, let's clear the table." So we three women cleared the table. Then the boss' wife said, "Oh, heck, why don't we do up these few dishes?" And she sounded like she really meant it.

Since the men were talking business in the other room I didn't see anything wrong with it, so we three laughed and talked and did up the dinner dishes. Then we joined the men. Everyone seemed to have had a wonderful time.

After the guests went home my husband had a fit. He said I should not have let the women do the dishes. I tried to explain it was the boss' wife's idea, but he said I could have (and should have) talked her out of it.

Abby, I still think I did the right thing. What do you think? CAUGHT THE DICKENS

DEAR CAUGHT: I think you did, too.

1. It is impossible to locate the queen of diamonds with any degree of certainty, but it is easy enough to assure the contract by exercising proper care. Win the spade with the jack and play a diamond to the king, planning to take a diamond finesse next. If it wins, you are certain of ten tricks. If it loses, you are sure of nine tricks regardless of what North does next.

South is the player you can't afford to have on lead, for he is the one who can, and perhaps will, destroy you with a spade return. You therefore play the diamonds so that, if you do lose a trick in the suit, North will wind up on lead.

2. Win the club with the king and, assuming the likely 2-2 or 3-1 break, draw the opponents' trumps. Then cash the A-Q of clubs, discarding a diamond, and play the A-Q of diamonds.

The defender who wins the diamond must either return a heart, cutting off one of your heart losers, or concede a ruff and discard.

The diamond finesse is deliberately shunned because it might fail, in which case a diamond return could result in losing three heart tricks and the contract.

Of course, if the trumps proved to be divided 4-0, you would have to rely chiefly on the diamond finesse. But with trumps divided normally, the suggested method of play is 100 per cent sure to win.

an interesting tour of the shops

During the past several weeks, our "tour of the shops" has been primarily concerned with gift ideas for the Christmas season. However, this week we will be stressing home decoration hints and do-it-yourself craft ideas.

AT INTERIORS DIVERSIFIED

If plans in your near future include a bit of redecorating, may we suggest that you stop at Interiors Diversified, where they offer many items which will brighten your home or apartment.

MARIMEKKO Prominently displayed in 54 inch wide bolts at Interiors Diversified is Marimekko, a sturdy decorator fabric, which is available in a vinyl finish.

Because of the varied Marimekko designs sold, the material can be used for a number of items including draperies, wall-hangings, table cloths, furniture upholstery, bedspreads — and some people have even used the fabric to create their own clothing fashions.

For those who like the basics of black and white, one bolt is embellished with a large geometric design in black, which is tastefully displayed on a white background. Others who may prefer a bit more color might like the large navy abstract flowers with bright yellow and orange centers, which are featured on a white background.

Also included among the diverse designs are large orange polka dots on a yellow background, patterned stripes and multicolored circles.

ITEMS FROM DENMARK Several imported items are displayed at Interiors Diversified and among them are two attractive carafe decanters. These clear glass bottles are ideal for serving red or white wine at the table.

Stainless steel articles from Denmark which are sold at the shop, include serving trays and dishes, egg cups, butter dish and knife sets and napkin rings.

PILGRIM GLASS A popular item among the ladies this year has been the Pilgrim Glass Kitchen Chemistry sets which are glass canisters with cork stoppers. The sets or pieces, which may be purchased separately include ice buckets, spice bottles and spaghetti jars.

FOR THE CHILDREN The children have not been forgotten by the personnel of Interiors Diversified as there are several wooden toy items that would delight any child. For example there are cars, trucks and buses which contain little wooden people, airplanes, puzzles, and a swing rod which can be used either indoors or outdoors. The swing is suspended from a strong nylon rope and the colorful seat takes the shape of a green frog, red apple or bright yellow butterfly.

AT DICK'S HOBBY SHOP

For those interested in crafts, we decided to visit Dick's Hobby Shop this week to enlighten shoppers in the newest do-it-yourself kits and ideas. VALENTINE DECORATIONS Valentine's Day will soon be here and if you will be entertaining on or near Feb. 14, now is the time to start planning those table decorations.

Dick's Hobby Shop displays several completed centerpieces that shoppers can use as guides. The arrangements feature heart-shaped pieces of styrofoam as bases which carry out the Valentine motif with frills of lace, beads, sequins and tiny heart accessories.

HOLLY DOMES The newest craze among craft-minded people are Holly Domes. These items are oval-shaped domes which often display figures of children or small animals. The Holly Dome kits include the materials necessary to make the dome and three substances, Crackle-It, Protect-It and Age-It, along with an easily understood instruction book. One attractive Holly Dome wall-hanging at the shop was created by attaching three different sized domes on a one and a half inch strip of gold velvet ribbon.

SPRING PURSES As spring approaches, many women will want to begin work on their spring and summer basket purses. The purses are sold at Dick's Hobby Shop, along with everything needed to finish them. Some like to leave the purses in their natural shades, but others prefer to paint them or apply decals, and the personnel at the shop will be happy to help you select the ornamentation suitable to your tastes.

Angry But Orderly Blacks Blast Police, Claim Harassment

Detroit (UPI) — Angry blacks packed a City Council hearing Thursday and complained that police have harassed innocent citizens in their zeal to find three black men wanted in the shootings of six policemen.

The crowd grew so large that the council moved the hearing from its chambers at the City-County Building to Ford Auditorium, where 1,700 persons jammed a meeting room.

The crowd, about 95% black, was clearly in an angry and shouting mood, but it was orderly and there were no major disturbances.

The hearing was called by the council to allow citizens to tell of alleged incidents of police harassment since four plainclothes police officers were wounded in a shootout Dec. 4 and one officer was killed and another wounded in a second incident Dec. 27.

All the officers were members of the plainclothes unit known as STRESS (Stop the Robberies—Enjoy Safe Streets), which works undercover or in decoy units to fight street crime and narcotics traffic.

'Mad Dog Killers'

Police Commissioner John Nichols, who sat intently at the hearing until he got a chance to speak, had called the three suspects in the shootings "mad dog killers" and launched the city's most massive manhunt ever.

4-H, FFA Youth To Exhibit At Denver Show

Denver, Colo.—A total of 50 Nebraska 4-H and FFA youth will be exhibiting livestock at the 1973 National Western Stock Show to be held here from Friday until Jan. 20.

Nebraska showmen will be among 540 exhibitors in the junior division from a record number of 19 states. Entries in the junior division total 487 steers, 105 heifers, 237 lambs and 211 hogs.

McDonald Name To ETV Position

Gov. J.J. Exon's office announced Thursday the gubernatorial appointment of Brendan J. McDonald to the State Educational Television Commission.

McDonald, president of Kearney State College, replaces Dr. Francis J. Brown of Genoa.

Exon said Brown resigned from the nine-member commission for health reasons.

Meeting Planned

A Sprague-Martell community meeting "for the betterment and improvement of the community" will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Sprague-Martell School.

The three—Mark Behune, 22, Hayward Brown, 18, and John Percy Boyd Jr., 24—are still at large.

Sandra Overstreet, a friend of Boyd's sister, told the council that Michigan Bell confirmed that police tapped her phone and that her home was searched. As she moved to sit down, Miss Overstreet turned to Nichols and shouted, "Now tell me who are the real mad dog killers?"

After several other persons spoke, Nichols took the podium to defend police tactics. He was shouted down and not allowed to complete a sentence.

FTC To Check Food Prices

Washington (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission announced Thursday plans to start checking supermarket prices across the country to aid consumers in finding out who really has the lowest prices in town, and prosecuting stores that claim they do, but don't.

"There has been an explosion of aggressive discount price claims by food chains.

Sometimes four or five chains all claim 'the lowest prices in town.' We somehow feel they can't all be right," said Robert Pitofsky, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

He said the commission will first allow 60 days for comments on its proposed plan to check several chain stores in a number of cities twice a month.

"We don't want to hear Nichols," shouted one person. "Get him out of here." screamed another. "You can't bring back dead people," yelled a third.

Couldn't Quiet Crowd

The crowd grew louder and many persons stood up to yell at the police commissioner. Newly elected Councilwoman Erma Henderson, one of three blacks on the council, tried in vain to quiet the crowd so Nichols could speak.

Boyd's mother, Dorothy Clore, his sister, Melba Clore, and his half-brother, John, said that police broke into Mrs.

Clore's home looking for Boyd even though he had not lived there for two years.

John Clore said one black police officer came up to him when white policemen stormed into the living room and said, "Be cool, man, these dudes want to kill you."

The Rev. Leroy Cannon said police burst into his home at 4 a.m. one day thinking one of the three suspects had entered the house. Cannon said police threw him against a wall and a white officer said, "Nigger, if you breathe loud, I'll blow your brains out." Police later said they were mistaken, he said.

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Police charged two Iowa State University students with grand larceny after officers went to their dormitory room Wednesday afternoon and found three city parking meters.

Police said the two were arrested after officers received an anonymous call.

Washington (AP) — The Democratic leadership Thursday captured absolute control over what legislation goes to the House for the first time since the New Deal days of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Speaker Carl Albert stopped just short of publicly stating he hand-picked new members to the legislative-dispatching Rules Committee to give him an eight-vote majority control.

"I think I had a little bit to do with the ones who were recommended," the speaker told newsmen with a broad smile.

Albert's legislative control could become a key in the battles shaping between President Nixon and Congress. Democratic leaders over such major issues as the Vietnam war, control of federal spending and social issues.

Former Rules Chairman William M. Colmer, D-Miss., who retired with the last Congress, publicly refused to clear such Albert-backed legislation as a minimum wage increase for action by the House.

Tangled With Albert

Colmer also put the President's cross-town busing ban before the House and openly tangled several times with Albert and other leaders on what legislation to put before the House.

But the new chairman, Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., is expected to generally agree with Albert's decisions on what legislation to send to the House floor. And so are all three new members appointed to the Rules Committee Thursday, to give Albert virtually complete control of the 15-member committee.

The three new members are Democratic Reps. Morgan F. Murphy of Illinois, Willis W. Long of Louisiana and Clem Rogers of Oklahoma.

They were selected by the Democrats' Committee on Committees, headed by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas. The panel at the same time, named Democratic members for the 20 other major House committees.

An aide close to the leadership said Albert "look a lot of heat from Southerners" who wanted to replace Colmer with a conservative Democrat.

Rep. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss., said he led that effort.

"I'm very disappointed," Montgomery said.

The Rules Committee's job is to schedule the variety of bills coming out of committees for floor action. It also has the power to block action on bills it does not like and permit floor substitutes of those it does.

The House committees will not officially be formed and begin work on legislation until the Republicans select their members and all are routinely approved by the House.

Answers Given On New Pay-Price Policy

Washington (AP) — Here are some of the frequently asked questions about President Nixon's new system of voluntary wage-price standards announced Thursday and the answers:

Q. Can a company raise its prices without government approval now that the mandatory nature of controls has been eliminated?

A. Yes, unless it is in the food or construction industry or provides health services, but the government says it will step in if price increases get out of line and violate voluntary standards.

Q. What are the voluntary standards for wage increases?

A. The standard is still 5.5% until a labor-management advisory committee named by the President works out a new standard.

Q. What are the voluntary standards for price increases in Phase 2?

A. Roughly the same as they are now. Companies will be expected to justify their price increases with legitimate costs. They will be expected by the government to comply with a profit-margin limitation, holding their margins to the average they maintained during the best two of the last four fiscal years. They can escape profit-margin restraints by keeping price increases to an average 1.5% a year.

Q. How will the government see to it that these voluntary standards are followed?

A. In several ways. First, large companies with sales of $250 million or more must file quarterly reports with the government on price changes and profit margins. Those with sales of more than $50 million will be required to keep the records of these changes and make them available on demand.

In addition, the Internal Revenue Service will continue its spot checks to find out if anyone is out of line.

Q. What about all other companies, those with sales of under $50 million?

A. The government claims that the inflation problem is concentrated in the large industries. But it says it can step in with enforcement moves if wage and price increases become a problem.

Q. How will wage boosts be watched?

A. All employee units of 1,000 or more employees will be required to keep records of wage increases and must produce them on request. All units of 5,000 or more employees will be required to file wage-increase reports with the Cost of Living Council. Smaller employee units will be exempt from making these reports.

Q. Who is running the program?

A. The Pay Board and Price Commission have been abolished, and their functions transferred to the Cost of Living Council. The council will oversee continued mandatory controls in the food and health areas.

Q. What about rent controls?

A. They are abolished.

Q. What about the hundreds of price-increase requests before the Price Commission and wage boosts before the Pay Board?

A. The government says that it will clear out these requests during a 90-day period. But, for all practical purposes, the controls are off. A company with a request pending, if it thinks it can prove it is within the standards, can go ahead and raise prices without prior government approval.

Q. How will the government punish a violator?

A. The Cost of Living Council can issue a temporary order setting interim wage and price levels, set a price ceiling, and even roll back price or wage increases that violate the voluntary standards.

Q. But aren't the standards really mandatory then?

A. Perhaps. It's the "stick-in-the-club" approach. The system will depend on how tough the government is in enforcing the "voluntary" standards.

Q. Are all food prices controlled?

A. All but those at the farm level, where they have gone up the most.

Q. How can a consumer tell if a price increase he notices at the department store is within the voluntary standard?

A. It won't be easy. The price standards are so complex that only an accountant, and the IRS, can figure out if the increase is legal. The IRS will still handle complaints from consumers.

Ray Lashes Nixon Priorities

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Gov. Robert Ray lashed out at the "priorities" of the Nixon administration in his third inaugural address he delivered Thursday.

Ray spoke specifically about the cutoff of Rural Environmental Action Programs (REAP) funds by the Department of Agriculture two weeks ago.

He said those funds, used to fight soil erosion and water pollution, "benefit all our people, not just the farmers."

Report Suggesting Reductions In Irrigated Land Hit By Exon

Phoenix, Ariz. (UPI) — Nebraska Gov. J. J. Exon told a National Water Commission conference here Thursday he violently objected to a commission report which suggested there would be substantial reductions in irrigated agricultural land.

"My main reason for being here today is to violently object to the parts of the report that reflect a great reduction in the need for irrigated acreage by the year 2000," Exon said.

The conference was one of four scheduled across the nation to gather testimony from the various states on the commission report which suggests, in short, reductions in water development subsidies.

4 Million Acres
Exon noted that Nebraska has added one million acres of irrigated land in five crop reporting years, which put the total irrigated land in the state at about four million acres.

The state has an even greater potential for future development in that field and the governor said it would be "absurd" to think that the farmers and related industries would stand by and allow reductions to take place in Nebraska or any other western state.

"The complete absurdity of projecting that all of the vested interests in addition to the individual farmers using the water for irrigation will sit idly by and allow from 9.4 to 26.1 million acres of land under irrigation in 1969 in the 17 western states to be taken out of production by the year 2000 is self-evident," Exon said.

Even assuming that reductions could be brought about, he said the impact would be widespread.

"The obvious social cost that would be involved in even a transition period of phasing out or down the level of irrigated agriculture in terms of the levels of unemployment, population thinning and the decay of community facilities would be tremendous," Exon said.

Evaluation Favored
As to the matter of reducing federal subsidies in the field of water development in general, Exon told the commission he agrees programs should be evaluated.

The report, he said, "makes a strong case" for reductions in subsidies. But regardless of the report, Exon said the states feel differently about cutbacks.

"We strongly contend that we need federal assistance in these areas," he said.

To ultimately adopt policies which would cut water development areas, the governor added, would not only harm agriculture but would possibly be setting a national policy in other areas.

"Urban problems are serious and the expectation of increased difficulty in terms of pollution, crime, transportation and other aspects of urban centers is high," Exon said. "Considering this, care should be exercised in developing a national policy which would tend to cause a further shift from rural to urban centers."

Osborne Deserves Platform Spot

Tom Osborne, who is starting his 11th day as Nebraska's head football coach this morning, can't score his first coaching victory for another eight months.

And for that reason, Dr. Osborne isn't likely to gain a spot at the speaker's platform when debate takes place at the NCAA Convention in Chicago on the proposed reorganization of the NCAA and proposals on restricting football scholarships.

If Osborne doesn't get a chance to present his views, the loser in the very important game that will be staged on the Chicago convention floor could be the forces trying to save big-time college football from being controlled by the Hofstras and Bucknells.

The battle lines at the speakers' platform for the big-time football powers can be expected to be manned by the Darrell Royals, Frank Broyles and Chuck Fairbanks.

But there's no way any of them can be as persuasive, especially with the academic community as Dr. Osborne because he can talk their language, not just with X's and O's.

A couple of weeks ago in a Miami hotel room that was jammed with writers, Osborne was quizzed at length by those writers on his views of college athletics, not all of the writers feeling the same way about the future of them as Dr. Osborne.

Wins Them Over

But as writers always do after the subject leaves, they began talking with each other about Osborne's philosophies and none was ready to argue with those views.

"If the people, who are trying to keep big-time college football at its current peak don't get Tom on the platform before those educators at the Chicago convention, they're making a big mistake," summed up Bill Jaus of Chicago Today, a veteran observer of the collegiate sports scene and NCAA conventions.

Another, who is convinced of Osborne's "in" with the educators, is his immediate boss, Husker athletic director Bob Devaney, who a year ago picked Osborne to succeed him on Jan. 2 as NU's head football coach.

"The need is to communicate with them," says Devaney. "Tom can do that. He talks their language. He taught on campus before he joined our staff. The educational community hated to lose him."

In addition to reorganizing the NCAA into divisions, proposals to be debated Friday and Saturday include basing scholarships on need, reducing scholarships and the size of football coaching staffs and the always controversial 1.6 rule whereby a prospective athlete must predict on the basis of high school grades and entrance exams his ability to maintain a 1.6 average.

Osborne has definite and well thought out views on all subjects.

'Need' Worse Than Reductions

"The need program bothers me more than the reduction idea," says Osborne. "If need happens, you'll see violations like you've never seen before. It has been tried before in the Big Ten."

"The 1.6 rule hits culturally deprived ghetto students. We had five players, who didn't 'predict' and they paid their own way. All five have better than C averages and are making progress toward degrees."

"A great deal of this NCAA legislation goes contrary to the academic drive to help minority groups. It hits at minorities. This isn't consistent with education today."

Osborne may not get to express his views on the floor of the convention, but the new Husker head football coach is in Chicago expressing those views to anyone willing to take the time to listen.

—NO INTRA-CITY GAMES SLATED—

Busy Weekend On Schedule For Lincoln Basketballers

By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Writer

It's a rare weekend for Lincoln's high school basketball teams. Six games are scheduled. And none of them is an intra-city contest.

The Capital City will be host for five of the six games, including three on Friday night: Waverly at Pius X, Grand Island v. Southeast at Johnson Gym and Beatrice at East.

Saturday night finds three Lincoln-Omaha rivalries: Central at Lincoln High, Benson v. Northeast at East High's Gym and Southeast at Creighton Prep in the only road game.

Grand Island has a 4-1 record, including its most recent 89-79 upset over 10th-rated Kearney. Southeast is also playing .500 ball (3-3), so the loser of the Trans-Nebraska Conference contest will sink below the break-even point.

Unbeaten East also faces a 4-1 team in Beatrice, a hot-and-cold club which owns impressive victories over East Big 10 schools Fremont and Columbus.

Waverly will bring a 10-2 record and a revenge motive to Pius X. One of the Vikings' two setbacks was administered by the Thunderbolts in the Doane Holiday Tournament.

"We shot poorly (37 percent) against Pius," notes Waverly coach Ron Seymour. "We wanted that game pretty bad to advance and see how we'd compare with a Crete or a Fairbury."

"But," he adds, "we just sat there and looked at them. And that's about as close as we got." The Vikings, seeking a third straight state Class B tournament berth next March, count on the shooting arms of guard Charlie Bell, forward

Rick Samuelson
City Scoring Leader

John Winter and center Marty Weber. They are averaging between 15 and 18 points apiece.

"It should be another close game," says Seymour. "I think in the last eight games against Pius, six of them have been decided by four points or less."

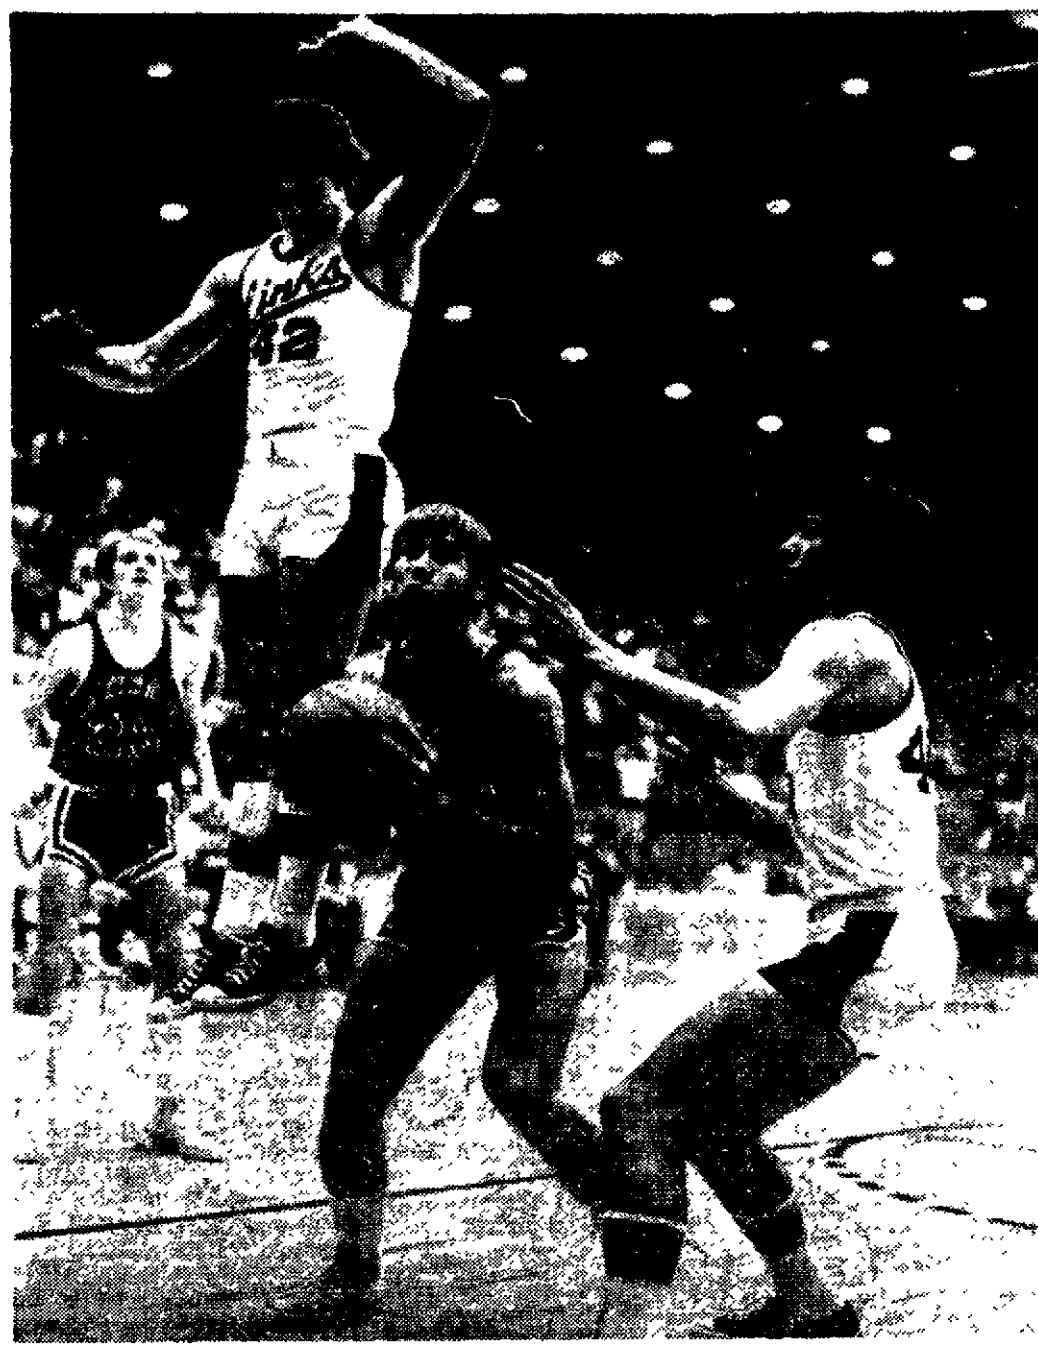

In Omaha Central, Lincoln High will face a 6-4 team which has beaten fifth-rated Omaha North and played third-rated Omaha Tech within two points.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins, who set a National Football League record of 2,960 yards this season, will be able to run the football in Sunday's Super Bowl against a Washington defense which has allowed just six points in its two playoff games, Dolphin coach Don Shula said Thursday.

In the third of four news conferences scheduled for the Super Bowl coaches this week, Shula said, "we feel the running game is our main strength and Washington is strong against the run. But we think we can get our running game going."

Allen Calls Redskin Practices Excellent

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — George Allen, admitting, "I don't think I'm ever relaxed," seemed tense but confident three days before the Super Bowl Thursday as he reported that his Washington Redskins have had "excellent practices and excellent meetings."

The Redskins coach, who will send his team against the unbeaten Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl VII, said, "I live and die each day by the way we practice and so far we've had excellent practices and excellent meetings in spite of all the distractions."

Allen, in his meticulous attention to detail, has had the practices at Anaheim Stadium filmed each day and he seems to think his club is reaching a peak.

But Allen is still worried about "distractions," including the distractions from the players' wives. "We don't want to go through what Minnesota and Baltimore went through when they lost the Super Bowl," the coach said.

Allen continued, "the Minnesota wives came down and started complaining about the size of the rooms and got the players upset and pretty soon the game became the least important thing on their minds."

The Redskins wives, some of whom have already arrived although most of them won't come until Saturday, won't have a chance to complain about the rooms because Allen won't allow them to stay with the players at the Saddleback Inn in Santa Ana.

"The wives had to make their own reservations and I don't even know where they're staying," Allen said. "If I could arrange for them to stay in Chicago, I'd be happy."

Allen repeated, "our big problem is to keep our mind on football."

Allen was asked if the players are allowed to see their wives before the game and he replied, "they might be able to but they won't have too much time."

The Redskins spend from 9 a.m. to about 5 p.m. at Anaheim Stadium each day, take a bus back to their hotel for a team meal and then many of the players have 8 p.m. before the 11 p.m. curfew.

"I don't consider practice over when we leave the field," Allen said. "There are always films to study. Last night at 9:30, I went into Jack Pardee's room and he and Pat Fischer were studying films."

Among the other things Allen is studying is the sun. That's right, the sun. He was able to report to the writers that it rose in the east and set in the west.

"I sent a man out to the Coliseum to look at the sun," Allen said. "He checked the sun for two hours because we're playing an early game Sunday and he brought back a diagram."

Permitting himself one of his few tight-lipped smiles, Allen said, "he found out the sun's still there."

The kickoff is set for 12:30 p.m. PST, so the fans on the east coast can view it at 3:30

EST. But the earlier kickoff means the position of the sun will be slightly different than it is for regular season games that begin at 1:00 PST and Allen always believes in checking things like that out. That's why he's never relaxed.

"We've tried to do everything the same that we do at Redskin Park in Virginia," Allen said. "Even if you change just one thing, it can throw the club off."

Allen said his only questionable player is tackle Terry Hermeling, who has a strained knee. If he can't play, Mitch Johnson will be activated to take his place on the roster and Ray Schoenke will start.

Allen, summing up his feelings about distractions, said, "all these activities are worth nothing. What good are they? They aren't even worth a stick of gum. The important thing is the game. If we win we'll all be champions for life, even if we live to be 100."

Cleveland's Draft Surprises Former Nebraskan Stohs

Gene Stohs, the hard-hitting pitcher-outfielder from Grand Island who finished his collegiate eligibility with the Nebraska Cornhuskers last spring, was the only baseballer from the state selected in Wednesday's major league draft.

Stohs, who a year ago was drafted in the third round by the Chicago White Sox, was picked in the second round of the supplemental draft by the Cleveland Indians this time.

The left-handed speedster, after turning down the White Sox offers last spring, enrolled in medical school in Omaha last July.

"I'm really surprised to be

drafted again," Stohs admits. "I figured that when I turned down the first chance and entered med school that the scouts would have taken me off their lists."

Because of the July start for his schooling, Stohs didn't play baseball last summer.

"I thought I'd hang up the spikes," Gene added, "but maybe not. I'll be real interested to listen and see what the Cleveland people have to say."

Stohs admits that he will be hesitant to interrupt his medical schooling for anything short of a "tremendous" offer.

No. 1 Northeast Falls In Three-Overtime Tilt

... KLETCHKA BASKET PROVES DECISIVE

He eyed the basket a couple of times and appeared ready to attempt the game-winning shot. But after spotting Kletchka in the open under the basket, Madlock fired the ball off and Kletchka banked it in.

Northeast quickly called time out with two seconds remaining. But a long-distance shot to the other end sailed out-of-bounds and the enthusiastic, eighth-rated Links had realized their upset.

The top-rated Rockets played the entire game without starting guard Marty Shields. Rob Ketterer, Northeast's other guard, started the second half, but did not score.

The biggest blow to Northeast's bid to stave off the upset was the exit of junior front-liner Terry Novak. He left with 6:27 remaining in regulation time, having scored 12 points before fouling out.

His departure brought an overzealous response from the Lincoln High players on the court, somewhat tarnishing the win in the way of sportsmanship.

After the Rockets roared to an early 5-0 lead, neither team could manage more than a four-point spread thereafter. The Links seemed to have the opportunity to put the game out of reach on a number of occasions. But either missed free throws or turnovers foiled their chances.

NWU Set To Visit Kentucky

Louisville, Ky. — Three freshmen are carrying the load for Bellarmine College of Louisville, Ky. Saturday night's opponent for the Nebraska Wesleyan University Plainsmen.

NWU coach Irv Peterson sees the contest set for 7 p.m. CST in Bellarmine's Knight Hall as an even match.

"Height is about even and our records indicate the game should be a close one. Our big problem has been the cold and flu bug. We haven't had everybody together for a practice since the first of the year," Peterson said.

"We haven't been working too hard, so maybe we'll be recuperated by the time we play Saturday."

Bellarmine has a 4-5 season mark, after starting the season by compiling a 3-1 record before the Christmas break.

The Knights, coached by Joe Reibel, are paced through early action by Floyd Smith, a 6-0 freshman guard, averaging 19 points a game.

Derek Doward, a 6-4 freshman forward, is second in scoring for the Knights with a 14.5 average and 6-4 freshman forward Jim Hall is third on the scoring charts.

Veterans George Duncan, 6-4 center and Bobby Todd, 6-0 guard, round out the scoring chores. The Knights' hopes for a winning season were dashed last week when one of their big men, 6-7 Pete Schubeler, underwent knee surgery.

The contest is the first of two on a road trip for the Plainsmen prior to opening Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Association competition with Hastings College Jan. 20 at the Bronco's home court.

If every one is healthy, Peterson will stick with his starting five of 6-6 John Strain at center, 6-4 Mike Renken and 6-2 Steve Joekel at forwards, and 5-9 Riedell Lintz and 6-2 Charles Rine at guards.

Strain continues to pace the Plainsman scoring attack with an 18-point average followed closely by Lintz and Joekel. Renken is the top rebounder with a 17 average per game.

Stohs says the White Sox knew he had been accepted into medical school when they drafted him last year.

"I listened to what they had to offer," he remembers, "and then weighed it against starting out in medicine. I just felt school promised a better future than what they offered."

Now Stohs will have to get out the scales again and weigh a Cleveland offer against the continuation of his schooling. Then, he may also get out the spikes.

The No. 1 choice in the draft was Alan Bannister, who appeared in the College World Series in Omaha last summer with runnerup Arizona State.

The slugging shortstop for the Sun Devils was immediately signed by Philadelphia.

Stohs admits that he will be hesitant to interrupt his medical schooling for anything short of a "tremendous" offer.

Snead (J.C.) Holds Lead In Phoenix Open Meet

... EX-OSU TEAMMATES TIE FOR THIRD

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — J. C. Snead, a 30-year-old nephew of famed Sam Snead, fashioned a brilliant eight-under-par 62 Thursday for the first-round lead in the $150,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

Snead's score also was the best in the last 12 months on the pro tour. He held only a one-stroke lead as the friendly little Arizona Country Club course yielded scores of par or better to almost half the field of 144.

Dale Douglass, who makes a habit of playing well in Arizona, toured the 6,216-yard par 70 layout in 63 with birdies on the last four holes.

He was alone in second with a pair of former Oklahoma State teammates—Grier Jones and Bob Dickson—tied at 64.

Dave Hill and Gary Groh were at 65 with Bert Yancy and Tommy Aaron in at 66, four under par.

Defending champion Homero Blancas was one of a large group at 68.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer and Bill Casper are not competing in this event, second of the year on the pro tour.

Tony Jacklin of England had to rally for a par 70, leaving him well back in the field. Rod Funseth, surprise winner of last week's Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, had a 67, five off the pace but well in contention.

Snead, a one-time professional baseball player who leaped into golf's winning circle with a pair of victories in 1971, birdied the front nine in 30, birdied the next two holes and admitted he was thinking about a 59—an all-time record for the tour.

"I had it in good enough position to maybe shoot 59," he said.

"I was seven under after 11 holes, then birdied the 13th hole. But I just didn't hit the iron that good coming in."

"I don't think I was choking, but I was a little nervous. I guess anyone would be," said the husky, 210-pounder, who scored his third tour triumph in the IVB-Philadelphia Classic last season.

Laboratory Providing Aid To State Officers

The "long arm of the law" is getting even longer in Nebraska, much to the dismay of poachers of the state's game.

That extra reach is being provided by Game and Parks Commission research biologists using a laboratory technique that positively identifies meat and blood according to species.

Needless to say, the conservation officer finds it much easier to obtain a conviction when the lab can tell him and the court that a smear on a coat sleeve is definitely deer blood or that a package of meat found in a freezer is venison.

The process begins with a rabbit in Commission's research laboratory in Lincoln. The laboratory rabbit is a special "critter", inoculated earlier with deer blood by Dave Oates, a Commission research biologist. The rabbit's body has built up an immunity to the protected pattern of deer blood and other deer tissue, much the same as people develop resistance to bacteria when vaccinated. This immunity is carried in an antiserum, which Oates extracts from the rabbit's blood.

He then places a drop of a solution prepared from the unknown blood or tissue sample on a treated glass slide, along with a drop of antiserum. The reaction of the unknown substance and the antiserum forms patterns on the slide characteristic of proteins of various species.

To doublecheck results, Oates also runs tests with several known substances, including a confirmed sample of blood or tissue from a game animal.

A good supply of antiserum, keyed to deer and antelope is already on hand, and Oates is compiling a "library" of antiserum covering many mammals in Nebraska. In addition, antiserum of duck, goose, pheasant, chicken, and turkey have also been prepared.

The new technique is a valuable aid to Nebraska's conservation officers, who are thinly spread across the state. It means that an officer does not have to catch a poacher in the act of killing game or in possession of a carcass that is obviously a game animal. He can depend on Oates' lab work to tell him and the court of an individual's guilt, even if the suspected poacher has already cut up the deer or antelope and frozen it in packages innocently labeled "beef".

In actual practice, Oates' testimony seldom goes to court. When confronted with the lab's evidence, most poachers simply plead guilty and take their medicine. Of the 16 cases in which the Commission has applied the technique, Oates has been called to testify only once.

Of course, Oates' findings can work both ways. People have been cleared when lab tests showed contents of packages marked "beef" were just that.

In the long run, the laboratory has proven a valuable tool for law enforcement. Thanks to the new technique, blood on knives, ropes, clothing, trunk mats, or truck beds, the meat in a freezer, or hide left over from a poaching operation can provide the evidence needed for a conviction.

Two Air Force Gridders Quit; Marijuana Cited

Air Force Academy, Colo. (UPI) — Five cadets, including two members of the varsity football team, resigned from the Air Force Academy Thursday for smoking marijuana.

"Five cadets have submitted their resignations, said academy spokesman Capt. H. L. Rothgeb. "Disposition of allegations against three other cadets is pending."

"Two of the five cadets who resigned were football players," he said, "but we don't give out names on things like this to protect the individuals."

Search Continues For Clemente

San Juan — The search for the body of baseball star Roberto Clemente and three other victims of a New Year's Eve airplane crash entered its 10th day Thursday.

Navy divers operating off the submarine salvage vessel, Petrel, are expected to continue scouring the interior of the ill-fated DC-7 that plummeted into the Atlantic about 1.5 miles north of the San Juan International Airport.

A Navy spokesman reported Wednesday that the divers explored the cockpit without finding any bodies. Divers are also attempting to juggle the cargo packed airplane to see if bodies might be wedged underneath the fuselage.

A Navy spokesman ruled out any possibility of lifting the entire fuselage to the surface. He said this is impossible with the equipment at hand.

Only the body of Jerry Hill, the pilot, has been recovered to date.

Jail's All Right... If The TV Works

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. (AP) — It was fine with James Lyons when a judge who sentenced him to 10 days in jail for drunk driving said he could serve the time on weekends.

The 43-year-old construction worker has six children and needs to support them, after all, acknowledged Broward County Judge H. A. Saper.

But only only thing bothered Lyons.

"Do I have to start it this weekend?" Lyons asked. "This is Super Bowl weekend."

Bailiffs assured Lyons that he could watch the Miami vs. Washington game this Sunday on a color television set in the jail.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
